SURE SIGN OF FALL — Fall began on the calendar Tuesday, but previous to the official date, signs were evident it was on its way. Dead leaves which had already undergone their annual color change were starting to collect on the sidewalks while other leaves completing the cycle would be soon to join them. The air was found to be a little brisk in the mornings and chilling in the evenings. Most evident of all was the fact the majority of those getting up for work in the mornings found themselves groping around in the dark for a lightswitch - the twilight of fall was bringing on the night of winter. One additional sign of fall is those bright orange balls called pumpkins and pictured is Rosalind MacFarland of 421 Mulberry St. and her dog Fifi, as they discover one such fruit in their garden. Mrs. MacFarland's son, Todd, planted the pumpkin seed last year and mom and son plan to carve the pumpkin for Halloween, make a pie and plant some more pumpkins - all that from one seed!

State would take over from counties

Big welfare change urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's welfare system should be administered entirely by the state rather than be shared with Ohio's 88 counties, the Governor's Council for Cost Control said Tuesday.

In its fifth of sixth reports on proposals to save money in state operations, the council said the move would save an estimated $10 million a year.

It said savings would result from administration changes and elimination of redundant operations. The council said the changeover would not affect the level of payments in any assistance category.

Based on the experience of comparable state-administered programs elsewhere, the council said about 1,000 welfare positions could be phased out by going to a centralized system.

The council said there are 11,000 welfare employes in the current system, including 800 at the state level and 10,400 at the county level.

"With a centralized system, the state could establish welfare offices in concentrated population areas, regardless of county boundaries," the council said. It said procedural requirement could be handled more effective by these offices.

Other recommendations for the welfare department:

—Obtain employer and unemployment compensation information from the Bureau of Employments Services and quarterly social security information from the Social Security Administration to help determine unreported or underestimated income and reduce errors on Aid for Dependent Children recipients, at an estimated $5.2 million annually.

—Create a management system for public assistance programs, aided by a statewide network of computers, which would cost the state $5 million to install but could save it $88 million a year.

—Improve the Ohio Medicaid program, which had expenses of $291 million last year, to save about $10 million in federal and state funding.

The council also suggested the field supervisory staffs of the bureaus of vocational rehabilitation and services for the blind be combined to save about $400,000 in state and federal funds.

Three public information officer jobs in district offices of the Bureau of Employment Services should be eliminated and computer terminals should be installed in all OBES local offices to expedite the handling of claims, the council said. It noted that OBES has already elminated five of the public information posts.

Other suggestions:

—Discontinue the Governor's Youth Action Program, which the council said duplicates other Ohio Youth Commission and community programs.

—Sell 500 acres of state land separated from the Fairfield School for Boys by privately owned land.

—Establish an effective food program at correction institutions, use inmate labor in food preparations at such institutions and sell 750 acres of farmland at Southern Ohio Correctional Facility.

—Cut overtime costs at seven penal institutions and improve probation services to help reduce the number of persons sentenced to prison.

—Allow the more than 180,000 employers who pay unemployment taxes on a quarterly basis to put their money in designated banks rather than send it to Columbus and allow BES to invest the funds.

The council, headed by Frank E. Cheney of Lima, is to issue its final "mini-report" Thursday.

Patty says she was brainwashed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, who once derided speculation she was brainwashed, now swears that she lied under duress when she told of her rebirth as the revolutionary "Tania."

Miss Hearst's written testimony, which contradicts many of her tape recorded pronouncements from the underground, is likely to be hotly disputed in court.

The 21-year-old heiress declares in an affidavit that she was driven to insanity by her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers. She says they tortured her physically and mentally. She says she was blindfolded, bound and locked in a closet for weeks while constantly threatened with death.

"Finally, under the pressure of these threats, deprivation of liberty, isolation, and terror, she felt her mind clouding, and everything appeared so distorted and terrible, that she believed and feared that she was losing her sanity," says the affidavit, filed in support of a motion that she be released on bond.

The document suggests that Miss Hearst, who declared that she had joined the terrorist band that kidnaped her, might still be insane.

Even now, captured and jailed, Miss Hearst says she remembers little of what happened to her after April, 1974 — two months after her abduction — and feels "as though she lived in a fog."

Her mother has compared Miss Hearst to a brainwashed prisoner of war. And a federal judge ordered on Tuesday that Miss Hearst undergo psychiatric examination.

The process of selecting a psychiatric panel was expected to be completed by next Tuesday when Miss Hearst returns to court. U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter said he would not consider setting bail until the psychiatric report is in.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., who seeks to try Miss Hearst on bank robbery and weapons charges, said, "I am looking forward to the opportunity of cross-examining Miss Hearst on the stand, assuming she is competent to stand trial."

He was expected to point up inconsistencies between Miss Hearst's sworn affidavit and her earlier actions and tape recorded comments.

The affidavit did not explain her apparent signals of continued revolutionary ardor since her arrest — clenched fist salutes, greetings to comrades and self-description on her booking sheet as an "urban guerrilla."

The seven-and-a-half page document, prepared and submitted by a team of defense attorneys, ignored a 17-month period during which Miss Hearst was a fugitive.

During that time she declared in one tape recording that she "died" with six SLA comrades in a May 1974 shootout with Los Angeles police and was reborn to new revoluntionary fervor.

"I know what I have to do," she said in that tape of June 7, 1974. "My comrades didn't die in vain. While I have no death wish, I have never been afraid of death. For this reason, the brainwash-duress theory of the pig Hearsts has always amused me."

The affidavit says, "She needs help and counseling to restore herself to complete sanity and to the life she led before the terrible experience which she underwent at the hands of this criminal gang brought her to the condition she is now in."

The affidavit's tale of terror and torment begins with Miss Hearst's abduction at Berkeley, Calif., on Feb. 4, 1974, and ends when she says she was forced to help rob a San Francisco bank on April 15, 1974. For many of these weeks, she recalls being locked in a closet.

"The closet was hot and extremely uncomfortable," the affidavit said. "She was given food but was unable to eat any for a period of about ten days, and for all that period was unable to dispose of her body wastes."

It said that the SLA member "Cinque," escaped convict Donald DeFreeze, brought tape recorders into the closet on which she recorded widely distributed statements.

When her blindfold was removed, "she felt as if she were on some LSD trip; everything was out of proportion, big and distorted.

"She heard constant threats against her life and saw that all of her captors were armed with revolvers, shotguns and other weapons."

The affidavit suggests the kidnapers' most potent weapon in a battle for Miss Hearst's mind were constant reports that her parents had abandoned her and would let her die.

When she returned recently to San Francisco, it was to find out if her parents still loved her, the affidavit says.

The document said the SLA's pressure finally broke her.

"She finally came to the realization that she was becoming insane, and fought to ward off this condition," the affidavit says.

The document does not mention the April 4, 1974, tape in which Miss Hearst announced she had taken the name "Tania" and decided voluntarily to stay with the SLA.

"I have never been forced to say anything on any tape," she declared then. "Nor have I been brainwashed, drugged, tortured, hypnotized or in any way confused. As George Jackson wrote, 'It's me, the way I want it, the way I see it.'"

Eleven days later, she was photographed holding an automatic rifle on customers during a robbery of a branch of the Hibernia Bank. Her affidavit says she was forced to participate under threat of death.

After the robbery, Miss Hearst said in another tape, "As for being brainwashed, the idea is ridiculous to the point of being beyond belief."

The affidavit contends her words were the lies of an insane woman.

But other statements in the tapes could be used in her defense. She refers frequently to abandonment by her parents and a fear that the FBI would kill her — ideas the defense says were part of the brainwashing.

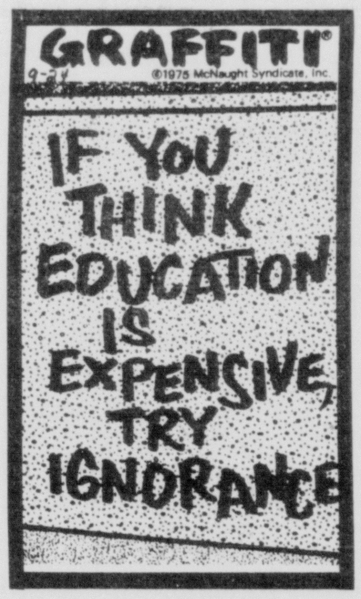

The statements, which may be a

Handicapped receive assistance

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. has generously donated 15 more TTY units to the DEAF, a Washington C.H.-based organization for the hearing handicapped.

A TTY is a typewriting unit which can be connected to a telephone to transmit messages. A typewriter message can be sent from one unit, and it will automatically be retyped on a similar unit to provide communications between deaf persons.

Although the units will require some modification to become adaptable to telephone usage, the conversion is not overly complex, and DEAF hopes to have several of the units operational in the near future.

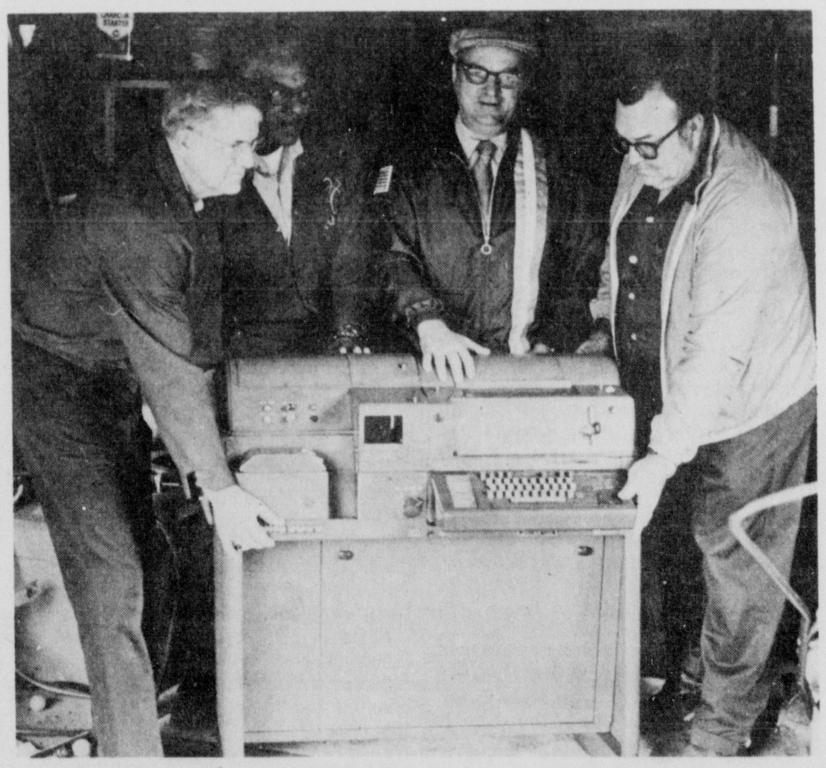

Seven of the units are capable of reading pre-taped messages. Emergency warnings for approaching bad weather or other messages can be taped beforehand and then fed into the TTY whenever necessary. This advantage makes contacting a large number of deaf persons much easier than typing the message of each person individually.

The eight smaller units will be distributed by DEAF to area residents.

Some may also be offered to Ross County which has expressed an interest in creating a TTY communications system for its residents. Ross County has already organized a special class for its sheriff's deputies to improve communications with the deaf. Miss Janet Duvall, president of Deaf, will instruct the course in understanding the deaf.

Until the units can be converted and distributed, they will be stored at the homes of Dale Butler, Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy, and Has Montgomery, 923 Washington Ave.

The units arrived from Ohio Bell's Columbus facility Wednesday morning.

COMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT — Has Montgomery (left), Esto Haithcock, Jim Venz and Bob Wood unloaded the first shipment of TTY units for DEAF, Inc., Wednesday morning. The machines were donated by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Columbus. Wood, Venz and Haithcock are members of the Ohio Bell Pioneer's Club which has been instrumental in obtaining equipment for DEAF since its inception this year. Venz and Billy Palmer drove to Columbus to pick up the units.

Appeals court rules against Demo bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats say they will decide later this week whether to push further through the state's court system with six partisan bills enacted early this year by the Democrat-controlled legislature.

The 10th District Court of Appeals ruled 3-0 Tuesday that the Franklin County Common Pleas Court was correct in ruling last June that the bills are invalid. The next step would be an appeal to the Ohio Supreme Court.

Peter Kinder, assistant in the office of Democratic Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who argued the case for Democratic leaders of the legislature, said he wanted to confer "with my clients" before letting them decide on the appeal.

He said he continues to believe Democrats have "a sound case", but wanted more time to study Tuesday's decision by the all-Republican appeals court.

Common Pleas Judge Frederick T. Williams, who issued the original decision, is a Republican, as are five of the seven justices of the Ohio Supreme Court.

The aging legal controversy started last January during the legislature's so-called "six day war", when Democrats for one week controlled the governor's office as well as both houses of the legislature.

They rushed through the six bills and sent them on to then Gov. John J. Gilligan for his signature, bypassing GOP Lt. Gov. John W. Brown who still had a few hours remaining in his term. The act set the stage for the suit to invalidate the legislation by Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, and others.

Maloney contended, and the courts thus far have agreed, that the lieutenant governor's signature on the legislation was a constitutional requirement. Kinder maintained that the signature was only "symbolic ... not substantive," and that otherwise the lieutenant governor would enjoy the power of veto over legislative enactments.

Tuesday's decision, signed by Presiding Judge Robert E. Holmes along with Judges Archer Reilly and John W. McCormac, held that there were no errors in the lower court decision.

William Brownfield, counsel for Maloney, had argued that the constitutional requirement for the lieutenant governor's signature was "stated clearly ... we don't contend that the lieutenant governor has any veto power whatsoever."

Probers discover CIA opened Presidential mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency regularly opened and read the mail of former President Richard M. Nixon and other prominent Americans including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as part of its 20-year mail surveillance program, the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said today.

A spokesman for Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said that Nixon's mail had been opened both before and while he was President. The spokesman added that the CIA opened and read the mail of other presidents as well.

In an opening statement as the committee began a second day of hearing on the so-called Huston Plan, Church listed a number of prominent American citizens and institutions who had been a target of the CIA's mail surveillance.

In addition to Nixon and Kennedy, Church said the mail of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., the late civil rights leader Martin Luther King and his wife, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, the Ford Foundation, Harvard University and the Rockefeller Foundation also was opened.

Church did not specify what evidence on which he based his statement but his committee has had complete access to CIA files on the mail surveillance program. His remarks indicated that he has personally seen a copy of a letter in CIA files that he had written to his mother.

Church did not make clear during what period of time the mail of the individuals and institutions he mentioned was opened nor did he give any indication of the quantity of mail opened. However, he said the letters had been "regularly opened and scrutinized by the CIA."

In its investigation of the CIA's domestic activities, the Rockefeller Commission outlined the agency's mail surveillance program under which letters between the United States and the Soviet Union were opened from 1953 to 1973.

However, the Rockefeller report made no mention of the individuals whose mail was intercepted.

With the exception of Bella Abzug, none of the names mentioned by Church had previously been disclosed as objects of CIA mail surveillance.

Abzug had revealed the CIA's opening of her mail several months ago after requesting and receiving her file from the CIA.

The leadoff witness at today's hearing was James J. Angleton, the CIA's former chief of counterintelligence and a principal figure in the mail opening program.

Meanwhile, a document was expected to be introduced in the committee today that may explain why then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover blocked security agency plans to use wiretaps, break-ins and mail openings to spy on Americans.

The committee's chief counsel, F. A. O. Schwarz Jr., described the document as a July 1970 memo from Hoover to then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The Hoover document apparently had never been disclosed before and was not submitted by the FBI to either the Senate Watergate or House Judiciary committees.

Schwarz said that he felt the memo contradicted previous assertions that Hoover had objected to the Huston plan tactics on the grounds that they were improper. However, he said the document would be subject to different interpretations.

Former presidential aide Tom Charles Huston told the panel Tuesday that the plan which bears his name was the brainchild of various intelligence agencies, not the Nixon White House. "Whatever recommendations I made" for use of clearly illegal tactics "were

Mental test eyed for Sara Moore

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sara Moore, ordered to undergo sanity tests after firing a pistol at President Ford, has only a "cloudy" memory of the assassination attempt, her attorney says.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff on Tuesday directed that the 45-year-old divorced mother of one be taken to San Diego on Friday and given psychiatric tests at the Metropolitan Correctional Center there. He said results would be reported to him by Nov. 18.

Arrested immediately after she fired at Ford as he emerged from a downtown hotel Monday, Mrs. Moore was held in lieu of $500,000 bail on a federal charge of trying to assassinate the President. If convicted, she faces a possible life sentence.

An ex-Marine deflected her chrome-plated .38-calibre revolver and the shot missed the President, slightly injuring a bystander.

Public defender James Hewitt told newsmen after Tuesday's hearing that Mrs. Moore's state of mind is "vague" and that she is "cloudy" about details of the incident Monday.

"I told her a mental examination probably would be ordered, and she seemed resigned to the fact," Hewitt said. "Her spirits are as good as could be expected."

"I don't know whether she's competent to stand trial," said U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. He said he sought the sanity tests partly because of "the bizarre nature of the offense" and partly because of "certain information from federal officials about Mrs. Moore, " which he declined to specify.

Mrs. Moore has been linked to several leftist groups, but also has been identified by the FBI as a paid informer who worked with the bureau on a regular basis until last June.

The Associated Press has learned that Mrs. Moore also was providing information to local police and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tax and Firearms as late as the day before the assassination attempt. The information was believed to have been in connection with a gun trafficking probe.

Mrs. Moore reportedly told agents who questioned her after the incident that she had earlier asked authorities to arrest her before she began to "test the system."

Hewitt said the transfer to San Diego was delayed until Friday to give him time to consider an appeal and to give Mrs. Moore time to make arrangements for her son, Frederick Aalberg, 9, currently in the Youth Guidance Center.

"She's a mother and she naturally is concerned about her child," Hewitt said.

Late Tuesday, it was learned that Mrs. Moore bought the gun she used in the assassination attempt — and another one that had been confiscated by police Sunday — from Mark Fernwood, a Danville, Calif., gun collector.

In another development Tuesday, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. signed bills imposing mandatory prison sentences for using guns in the commission of serious crimes and requiring a 15-day waiting period before gun purchasers can receive the weapons.

Extortion plot said caused by television

DYERSBURG, Tenn. (AP) — A juvenile officer blames too much crime on television for an attempted $1 million extortion plot planned by a group of Dyersburg boys ranging in age from 10 to 14.

The youngsters have been charged with threatening to blow up a Sears Roebuck and Co. store in an attempt to extort $1 million in cash and about $100,000 in guns, trucks and farm equipment.

The nine have been released in the custody of their parents pending a juvenile court hearing. Their names were not released.

"It's not that we felt they could have pulled it off," Juvenile Officer Joey McDowell said Tuesday. "It's that 12-year-olds could think of it. It's television and nothing else."

McDowell said officers didn't know they were dealing with juveniles until the mother of one of the boys identified her son's handwriting on the extortion note.

McDowell said the plot was well-planned except for a miscalculation in the amount of postage on the two-pound extortion note and other details that did not become apparent until the nine were in custody.

Sheriff's deputies were called into the case Monday when Sears store officials received a parcel containing a hand-written note and more than 100 pages torn from the Sears' catalog.

The note threatened that the store would be blown up if the money and merchandise marked on the catalog pages were not delivered in three Peterbilt trucks. The note demanded rifles, ammunition, farm equipment and citizens band radios.

McDowell said the type of truck was specified because one of the boys was familiar with the vehicle. He said other members of the group were chosen by the 12-year-old leader for particular skills or knowledge.

Investigators took the package to the postoffice, and postal officials were able to trace its origin. Despite the package's weight, the boys used only a 10-cent stamp when it was placed in the mailbox at the home of one of the plotters for the mailman to pick up.

"Everybody down at the postoffice remembered the package," he said. "It was sort of a joke because the postman who picked it up got chewed out for picking it up with so much postage due."

Deputies went to the house where the package had been mailed.

McDowell said the mother of one of the boys recognized the handwriting. The other members of the group were quickly identified and picked up, he said.

McDowell said the boys apparently had planned to purchase a large farm in northeast Arkansas and operate it with the equipment they hoped to extort from Sears.

Hurricane's rain washes eastern U.S.

By The Associated Press

Heavy rains and the remnants of Hurricane Eloise continue to plague the eastern part of the country.

Moisture associated with the remnants of the storm has produced locally heavy rain for large areas in the path of the storm, which is expected to move northeast into Pennsylvania today.

As a result, flash flood watches remain in effect from the lower Ohio Valley and southern Appalachians northward into the Middle Atlantic states.

Eloise drenched Georgia with heavy rain and buffeted the state with winds up to 60 miles an hour, but apparently caused no major damage and few injuries.

However, up to 100,000 Georgians were without electricity Tuesday night and a Georgia Power Co. spokesman said, "We're going to have a lot of people without power in the morning."

Showers and thunderstorms were widespread from the lower Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley and in the Atlantic Coast states.

Except for southern Florida, cloudy skies have covered the nation from the Mississippi River eastward. Generally clear skies covered the western two thirds of the country although some cloudiness continues over the coast of Washington.

Cool temperatures cover a large portion of the country with readings in the 40s and 50s across most of the northern two-thirds of the nation. Warm temperatures are confined to the south Atlantic coast, California and the desert southwest.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. (edt) ranged from 33 at Hibbing, Minn. to 85 at Yuma, Ariz.

Scot Lad takes store chain assets

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Scot Lad Foods Inc. of Lansing, Ill., has told a Summit County court that it took $305,691 in cash and supplies when it closed Co-Op Enterprises of Akron's last four grocery stores.

Scot Lad had been operating the stores for the financially troubled firm in lieu of collecting what's listed as $1 million Co-Op owed the Illinois company.

Co-Op filed for financial reorganization recently under the Federal Bankruptcy Act, and the U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge appointed a receiver to undertake the reorganization.

Meanwhile, labor organizations that hold $100,000 of CoOp's preferred stock have been told they can consider the stock a loss. And the receiver has told the court that Co-Op's funeral home operation will be shut down.

On Monday, Scot Lad, a food wholesaler, reported the amount of its withdrawal of cash and merchandise to Summit County Judge Daniel B. Quillin in response to his order. Quillin sought the information in connection with a suit by Reiter Foods of Akron, which charged that Scot Lad and CoOp had defrauded Reiter Foods at the time the stores were closed.

Reiter contends Scot Lad doubled its orders of dairy products and then sold them below cost in order to obtain cash it then could withdraw from bank accounts as well as the cash registers.

Co-Op, founded by labor unions several decades ago but later converted to a stock company, listed debts of $3.4 million against assets of $300,000 when it filed bankruptcy action in federal court. A receiver already had been appointed by the county court in response to creditors' suits, and Reiter wants that receiver retained despite the appointment of a receiver by the federal court in an action that normally would supercede the state court's appointment.

Monday night, representatives of the 52 labor unions that hold Co-Op stock were told they could "kiss it goodbye." The unions were seeking a means to occasion investigation of the firm for possible criminal violations.

The federal receiver has said Co-Op's six optical stores' operation will be continued. The grocery stores were the last of the firm's original seven food centers. Co-Op also had operated a funeral home, and the federal receiver said recently that he had decided against trying to keep it going.

Trudeau meets Mrs. Thatcher

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, the leader of Britain's Conservative party, meets with Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau today as she ends a two-day visit to the Canadian capital.

Mrs. Thatcher goes on to Toronto for a speech before the Empire Club at Toronto after her visit with Trudeau. She and her husband and accompanying British officials depart for home on Thursday.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Thatcher met with Robert Stanfield, leader of the Canadian progessive Conservative Party and with Mitchell Sharp, president of the Privy Council.

Big city mayors concerned over municipal bonds outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a spillover from New York's financial crisis, leading big city mayors are seeking congressional approval for more aid or federal guarantees to pay off municipal bonds if the cities default.

The Ford administration has opposed any federal bailout of financially strapped New York City or any other city.

The mayors' position is to be given today to the congressional Joint Economic Committee chaired by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and then at a meeting with President Ford. Among the mayors scheduled before the congressional panel are Abraham Beame of New York, Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Moon Landrieu of New Orleans and Coleman Young of Detroit.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon also is to testify.

A spokesman for the mayors said they want to ask Ford if he intends to let New York City default on its loans and go into bankruptcy, as some economic experts predict it will do when $2.3 billion in emergency state aid runs out in three months.

The spokesman said the mayors will recommend to Congress and Ford that the federal government must come to the aid of the cities and will suggest either grants or a form of insurance to protect city bonds.

In one of Ford's recent statements on the possibility of helping New York City, the President claimed the city had been run fiscally irresponsibly for 10 or 12 years and he said: "I see no role for the federal government, no legal role for the President to take under the circumstances."

Since New York's financial crisis emerged earler this year, other big-city mayors have warned that the fate of their cities is linked to that of New York's. They have said that if New York defaults, confidence in their cities' bonds will be undermined and they will have to pay higher interest rates to investors in order to borrow money. They say this will require cuts in services or increases in taxes.

ones which I believed represented the views of the intelligence community," Huston said.

According to Huston, the heads of the various intelligence agencies, including then-CIA director Richard M. Helms, told him "you give us these tools and we will solve the problem" of domestic violence.

Only Hoover suggested that the methods were unconstitutional or illegal, Huston said.

The plan was approved by President Richard M. Nixon in July 1970, but was withdrawn five days later at Hoover's insistence. However, Church charged that "the Huston plan itself was only an episode in the lawlessness which preceded and followed its brief existence."

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded a broad gain today, encouraged by expectations of no more than a moderate price increase by oil exporting nations.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 7.51 at 827.36, and advancing issues outpaced declines by about a 41 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Signs from the opening session of an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Vienna were that the oil nations would post only a 10 per cent price increase, or possibly less, when the current freeze on prices expires at the end of the month.

Among oil issues, Gulf, the Big Board volume leader, gained ⅜ to 21⅞; Exxon was up 1⅛ at 92⅝, and Standard Oil of Indiana rose ¾ to 48½.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up .54 to 84.68.

Solons may probe Secret Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a result of the two assassination attempts against President Ford, Congress is pushing its first investigation of the Secret Service and its performance in protecting presidents.

Alarmed that a woman who told police last weekend she might "test the system" could be allowed within 40 feet of Ford on a San Francisco street, a Senate panel is planning to question the director of the Secret Service next week to determine if changes should be made in the agency's protection program.

The congressional probe comes as the Secret Service itself is drawing up new protective procedures. Presidential Counsel Philip Buchen said "at least partial recommendations" for revamping presidential protection will be submitted to Ford before his next trip from Washington. The President is scheduled to visit Chicago next Tuesday.

San Francisco police said Tuesday that they had warned the Secret Service about Sara Jane Moore after she was charged with illegal possession of a gun and after she said she might "test the system."

They said they asked Secret Service if they wanted the woman held but were told it wouldn't be necessary. Secret Service agents then interviewed Mrs. Moore and decided not to place her under surveillance. The next day, she allegedly shot at Ford.

Safford named to Ohio Regents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — William Cullen Safford of Cincinnati was appointed by Gov. James Rhodes Tuesday to the Ohio Board of Regents. He succeeds Thomas L. Conlan, whose term expired Sept. 20.

Safford, the Ohio superintendent of insurance in 1927-28, has been a director, president and chairman of the board of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Co. in Cincinnati since 1957.

Environmental kooks

The arrest of Lynette Fromme for pointing a .45 at President Ford has brought to light the Manson "family's" Johnny-come-lately show of concern with preserving the environment. Witness the courtroom babbling of the accused about saving the redwoods; witness her roommate's claim that numerous businessmen considered suspect for their supposed ecological backwardness are in line for execution when the time comes.

This misguided fanaticism is a handicap for genuine environmentalists. The point is well made in National Wildlife magazine by its executive editor, Jim Doherty: "At a time when the environmental movement has become a convenient scapegoat for too many of the nation's ills, the last thing it needed was an assassination attempt on the President by a self-styled ecology freak. Subsequent revelations in the press about the Manson gang's seemingly deranged environmental concerns have only made matters worse."

There are selfish interests in this country which would welcome anything that throws the environmental movement into disarray. These are the groups that work hard to depict ecological concerns as threatening to hamstring the nation in its search for energy to meet rising needs. They would like nothing better than to have Americans dismiss environmentalists as kooks like the Manson zealots.

The fact is that there are a great many series, well informed, well motivated people in the environmentalists' camp - people who have soberly dedicated themselves to helping preserve our natural heritage. The "kooks," if one gets right down to it, are those who in effect advocate continuing environmental degradation and the profligate waste of resources.

THESE DAYS.... By John Chamberlain

Pennsylvania moves to meet crisis

Long ago, the State of Pennsylvania passed strip-mine reclamation legislation that is tougher than the Federal bill that was recently vetoed by President Ford. The ability of a single state to meet its ecological needs is catching: the resurfacing of old strip-mined land in the U.S. as a whole is now proceeding at a faster clip than the development of new open-cut coal acreage. The moral is that people don't have to wait upon the creation of new bureaucracies in Washington to solve their problems.

Washington, indeed, creates 10 new crises for every one that it settles. It has caused the natural gas shortage by its price meddling, with the result that some industries that have been using gas will have to close down this coming winter. The gas shortage puts a strain on other energy sources, notably electricity. So the Edison Electric Institute is now predicing that the nation will fall short of its required electrical energy supply by some 115 quadrillion BTUs within the next quarter of a century.

How is a community to react to such a prophecy? Thinking ahead for itself as it did in the matter of strip-mine reclamation, Pennsylvania has come up with the idea of the "energy park." Four Pennsylvania utilities — Philadelphia Electric, Metropolitan Edison of Reading, Pennsylvania Electric of Johnstown, and Pennsylvania Power and Light of Allentown — are now busy exploring 10 possible sites in their state where power plants might be clustered in relatively small geographical areas, with advantages in efficiency and pollution control that would help speed the investment process in a way calculated to overcome the gloomy fears of those who see "zero growth" as our national fate.

Ten years ago, the lead time for the construction of a new power plant was five years from the start of planning to operation. Now it takes seven to eight years for a coal-fired plant, and 10 years for a nuclear plant. Much of the time is wasted in waiting for the necessary environmental impact statement that must be filed and accepted before ground can be broken on a project. But if the utilities of any given state or region were to adopt the Energy Park concept, setting aside acreage in remote rural regions for the future siting of coal-fired and nuclear plants, the delays attendant upon licensing and the filing of impact statements could be eradicated. A single impact statement would, other things being equal, be good for all future construction on a given Energy Park acreage. And the 52 separate Federal and state licenses that must be obtained by the builders of a fossil-fuel plant could be issued once and for all.

John H. Seager, the project manager of the Pennsylvania Energy Park Development Group, doesn't claim that energy parks will necessarily create more electricity for the far future, but he does think they might save five years in bringing new generating plants on stream. And the ecological benefits in clustering energy-producing facilities in parks could be immense. The land requirements for water supplies, support facilities and the actual plant acreage would be far less than would be needed for an equal number of power plants at widely separated single sites. Energy-intensive industries such as aluminum would naturally cluster around an Energy Park in a new adaptation of the Industriai Park idea. Waste heat and processed steam might be utilized by other dependent industries. And agricultural enterprises might also make use of low-grade heat to grow year-round crops.

The Energy Park idea has sparked an interest not only throughout Pennsylvania, where the Governor's Energy Council has been holding "public input meetings" in each of the possible 10 site regions, but among emissaries from other states who have been coming to Harrisburg for information. An energy-starved people isn't going to put up with the negations imposed by the Naderites and the other pseudo-environmentalists forever. The encouraging thing about the U.S. system is that 50 states are still free to experiment, and to generate ideas that would never get off the ground in Washington. We may still surmount our energy crisis if the Federal bureaucrats can only be kept at bay.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, SPETEMBER 25

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
You can make headway in most matters, but some concessions may be obligatory. Do not take on new ventures without thorough investigation. This is no day for acting blindly.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
A conservative and prudent attitude will keep you from going overboard through misguided enthusiasm — a tendency now.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
As with many others, you will get into difficulty if you speak or act in haste. Stick to high principles, but avoid dissension, antagonism.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Iron out kinks in your plans and tactics. You should be able to interpret and handle situations ably now. In aiming for goals, however, don't overreach.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
A good period for long-range thinking and plans. Review carefully before launching unfamiliar ventures, but do not hesitate to try for a new achievement.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
An excellent day for considering a new business commitment, but keep future objectives in mind. Don't base decisions in the light of immediate gain.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
You could be wavering, indefinite. It will be that type of day — calling for strictness with self and others who require it. Design a pattern you can follow.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Once you are sure that your ideas have good potentialities, lose no time in trying to bring them to realization. Good Mars influences should help you.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
You may face some unexpected situations, some unforeseen changes. Accept all in your inherently gracious manner. They could turn out surprisingly well.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Everyone likes the accolades and few relish the critique, but the latter is often far more beneficial — when taken with the right attitude. Expect a "going-over" now: You will learn a lot.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Day may be less stimulating than you wish, but you can make it more so by your attitude, enthusiasm and willingness to cooperate with the best offered.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
This day calls for calmness and good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and do not let yourself be pushed into undesirable "corners."

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a keen and analytical mind; are a zealous scholar and extremely artisitic in your leanings. You apply your learning astutely and would make an excellent teacher or writer. You have many other careers open to you, however, but prefer either creative or intellectual pursuits. Your inherent love of beauty makes you an outstanding candidate in the fields of painting and sculpture, illustrating, designing and interior decorating. In other professions, choose from the law, medicine or statesmanship.

Rhodes continues lottery push

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state legislature has ignored an administration bill to revamp the Ohio Lottery Commission, but the rebuff has not lessened Gov. James A. Rhodes' resolve to win a greater voice in the Cleveland-based operation.

"Obviously, we can't just abdicate and walk away," Chan Cochran, the governor's administrative aide said after legislative leaders took no action on the bill during their three-day special session. "All they've done is delay the inevitable."

The bill, which would place all lottery employes under civil service and increase the authority of the director, a Rhodes appointee, is almost certain to lie dormant, at least for the rest of this year.

Meanwhile, there are indications that the politically charged situation is simmering down for the time being.

Deputy Director James Dickerson has resigned to campaign full time for mayor in the Sept. 30 Cleveland primary.

Dickerson was viewed by the Rhodes administration as the personification of the heavy political coloring of the commission. The return of Dickerson, who had been on a leave of absence, would have been "a setback," Cochran said.

The five commissioners, all appointed by former Gov. John J. Gilligan, operate almost independently of the administration whose lottery director does not have the authority to hire and fire lower echelon employes.

In recent months, the lottery operation has been hit with charges of mismanagement.

At the most recent meeting, commissioners asked acting director Gerald J. Patronite to provide further information concering the allegations for the Oct. 23 meeting.

Patronite, a 27-year-old Cleveland attorney with little political experience, has apparently won Rhodes' favor and is no longer viewed as an interim appointee. "He is lending some stability to the operation," Cochran says.

Two of the governor's previous choices resigned earlier this year, claiming they were powerless to deal with the Democratic-dominated commission.

Patronite, the state auditor and the Cuyahoga County prosecutor are investigating charges of political activity at the commission for Dickerson's candidacy and a report that a hotel liquor bill was paid with lottery funds.

In the meantime, the governor's Cost Control Council has put forth a proposal for restructuring the lottery panel that differs from Rhodes' bill.

The so-called "Little Hoover Commission" would make the director a working member of the commission to increase his effectiveness in managing lottery operations, "particularly personnel."

"It was considerably different as to detail," Cochran said of the council recommendation, "but not at all as to thrust."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Alaska not a happy man-hunting ground

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Looking in St. Paul," who wanted to know where she and a friend could find eligible men.

PLEASE, don't steer them to Alaska. True, there are many men, up here, but they are either itinerant military, or summer job seekers who are living off welfare, or itinerant workers who come here to make a fast buck and take it back to their families.

The number of unemployed men in Alaska is staggering.

Abby, please give your readers the following message: If you don't have a job and a place to live in Alaska, don't come.

The company I worked for transferred me to Alaska 18 years ago. I've remained because I like it, but the changes that have taken place here because of the oil boom are disheartening.

Crime is rampant because so many are jobless. The schools are crowded, and too few people care about the environment.

We Alaskans welcome people to our state who have something to offer and will be a good citizen. But we don't want people who bleed the land, destroy our wildlife, rip off our neighbors and make money here to spend elsewhere.

ALASKAN

DEAR ALASKAN: All right, that settles it. I'll amend my advice to women preparing to go on a man-hunt. Forget Alaska!

DEAR ABBY: In the four years I have lived in Florida, I have seen only one person wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key who has actually earned it himself. However, on other occasions, I have seen women wearing Phi Betta Kappa keys on charm braclets.

On inquiry, I learned that the keys belonged to their husbands. The women did not seem the slightest bit embarrassed to be wearing a symbol of academic achievement that they themselves did not earn.

Now that Phi Beta Kappa is approaching its 200th birthday, I wish you would state your opinion of this practice.

NOT CLEAR IN CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR NOT: Wearing ANY unearned symbol of achievement is dishonest, whether it's a Phi Beta Kappa key, a purple heart or a bronze star.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for those waitresses who don't seem to know which side their bread is buttered on.

I have never seen it fail. Every time my husband and I sit down to order in a restaurant, the waitress looks only at my husband and asks him what he wants. She ignores me completely.

He is the only one who is asked if he wants more coffee.

I know that is where the tip comes from, but if the waitress was smart, she would pay a little attention to the woman, because she's usually the one who decides where they dine.

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: Don't blame the waitress for turning to the gentleman for the order. It's customary for him to order for both the lady and himself. However, she should ask the lady (first) if she wants more coffee.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 1975. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1955, President Dwight Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while on vacation in Denver.

On this date—

In 1780, during the Revolutionary War, Benedict Arnold escaped to a British ship after attempting to betray the West Point fortifications on the Hudson River.

In 1789, the U.S. Supreme Court was being formed, and President George Washington named John Jay of New York as the first Chief Justice.

In 1869, there was panic on Wall Street after an attempt by financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk to corner the gold market.

In 1934, Babe Ruth made his farewell appearance as a regular player with the New York Yankees.

In 1941, in World War Two, Allied governments pledged adherence to the Atlantic Charter.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear tests.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union renewed its call for a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Communist Warsaw Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: Jordan's King Hussein appeared to be gaining the upper hand in fighting with Palestinian guerrilla forces in northern Jordan.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives voted to suspend military aid to Turkey until substantial progress was made toward a settlement on Cyprus.

Today's birthdays: Former astronaut John Young is 45 years old. Entertainer and composer Anthony Newley is 44.

Thought for today: Most people put off until tomorrow that which they should have done yesterday — Ed Howe, American writer, 1853-1937.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Daytime TV is naught but fastpaced game shows and plodding soap operas, right? Well, on Thursday, NBC is trying what Monty Python might call something completely different.

It is pre-empting two soap operas for a costly, 90-minute exercise ambiguously entitled, "Barbara Walters Visits the Royal Lovers." The lovers turn out to be married, with no hint of scandal about them.

Only two royal couples are dealt with, one in France, the other in Denmark, although lesser aristocrats appear as supporting players.

The show, described as an experiment in daytime TV by producer Lucy Jarvis, is a well-photographed combination of the this-is-me-at-the-palace and the it's-simply-divine schools of journalism.

It isn't meant to be weighty, as one might suspect from Miss Walters' inquiries. They range from asking the pretender to the throne of France if married Frenchmen keep mistresses to this corker to the Queen of Denmark: "Is it hard to be a queen?"

Billed as a look at "the glamorous world of European royalty," it's also a look at how Miss Walters hobknobs in that world, apparently to inspire vicarious thrills for the housewife in Peoria.

In the first segment on French would-be royalty and all that, Miss Walters takes us to a joint called Maxim's in Paris to watch her rub elbows with her aristocratic hosts and bump into Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to the late President Kennedy.

After she notes that he has strong opinions about modern royalty, she is seen traveling with Salinger in a car the next day.

She explains in narration that "the next morning I had an appointment at Versailles and Pierre gave me a lift." En route, he reveals that while aristocrats regard themselves as important, the average Frenchman gives not hoot one about their lives.

That should have been ample warning. But she presses on to Versaille, gapes a bit, chats a bit, then goes to a horse race and is told by a giggling Indian prince he needs a rich wife.

Then comes an aristocratic dinner, followed by a quick trip to fashion designer Yves St. Laurent, who says he is designing below the knee this year and whips up a quick evening dress for her.

And on it goes, with Miss Walters mightily impressed at times, pretentious at other moments and occasionally attempting to inject a little humor to show that she's just plain folks.

The only segment that really is interesting is her visit with the young Queen of Denmark, a very warm, natural and unassuming lady.

Households seek flood assistance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A total of 1,640 households in three flood-stricken Ohio counties have applied for state and federal disaster assistance, the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration reported Tuesday.

Applications will be taken again today at field offices in Cuyahoga, Belmont and Jefferson counties. Disaster loans and the state's cash grants were sought by most of those going to disaster assistance centers in Cleveland and Bellaire, Federal Coordinator Robert E. Connor said.

Oldsmobile 1976.

An Olds for everybody. And good mileage in every size.

Take a look at the beautiful new 1976 Oldsmobiles in your dealer showroom. They're impressive.

Then take a look at the 1976 EPA Mileage Guide test figures for Oldsmobile. They're impressive, too.

They show that good gas mileage runs in our family. Remember these mileage figures are estimates. Naturally the actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and available equipment.

From sporty Starfire supercoupes to full-size, front-wheel drive Toronados, there's good gas mileage in every size Olds.

That's quite a feat considering the array of sizes and models that Olds is offering this year. With this kind of selection, there's bound to be an Olds to fit your lifestyle and pocketbook. And every Olds, whether small, mid-size or full-size is built to be right for the times.

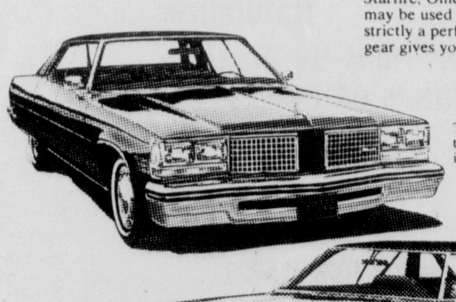

This year Oldsmobile is offering an available five-speed overdrive transmission on Starfire, Omega and Cutlass models. (You may be used to thinking of five-speed as strictly a performance feature, but the fifth gear gives you overdrive efficiency.)

We invite you to make a total comparison. Good gas mileage, traditional Oldsmobile engineering, construction, dependability and solid comfort. You'll find each Olds packed with value because it's built with the care and attention to detail that's a tradition at Oldsmobile. Can we build one for you?

THE 98 REGENCY. Proof that the world of luxury doesn't have to ignore a concern for gas economy.

DELTA 88 ROYALE. All the solid dependability of a family-sized Olds. Yet the 88 gets good gas mileage for a car of its size.

STARFIRE. Who says you can't get good gas mileage in a sporty car? Check out Starfire, Starfire SX and the available Starfire GT option—Oldsmobile's supercoupes.

CUTLASS S. Restyled front end and sides. The new look is bolder, sportier. All this . . . and surprising gas economy, too.

CUTLASS SUPREME BROUGHAM. The first mid-sized car to have an interior inspired by the famous 98 Regency. The gas mileage is pretty inspiring too.

OMEGA BROUGHAM. Quite possibly the most luxurious compact ever built. But its impressive gas mileage reminds you it's an economy car, too.

Altitude of bees proves problem

BRUNSWICH, Ohio (AP) — The city council here has decided against trying to force bees to fly above a certain altitude.

The matter arose after a Brunswich couple complained that bees from a neighbor's hives had entered the couple's basement repeatedly during the summer.

The complaint led to a proposed ordinance that required hives within 200 feet of a residence must be screened or mounted 10 feet above the ground so the bees must fly at least that high to enter their homes.

The council voted 5 to 2 to reject the measure Monday night, then returned it to the safety committee "for further study."

'Outstanding women educators' MW Committee meeting topic

Outstanding Martha Washington Committee Members on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, and guests enjoyed the hospitality of their gracious hostess Mrs. Willard Bitzer for their September meeting.

Mrs. Byron Hinton, chairman, welcomed Mrs. Gary Hidy and Mrs. Marvin Roszmann as new members and guests Miss Helen Hutson and Mrs. Fay J. Mayo and members. Mrs. Hinton led in the giving of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. B.M. Slagle, regent of Washington C.H. Chapter, DAR, made the announcement that the Nathaniel Massie Chapter, DAR, of Chillicothe, will be hosts to the Washington C.H. Chapter at 12:30 luncheon Oct. 1, at the Chillicothe Country Club- reservations to be made with Mrs. B.M. Slagle before Friday. Also announced was the Washington Chapter DAR luncheon Oct. 6th at White Oak Grove Church, when Mrs. Norman DeMent will be guest speaker on "How Are We Prepared for the 200th Anniversary of Our Country". Music will be by "The Cecilian Double Trio".

Mrs. Bitzer, second vice regent of Washington C.H. DAR Chapter, introduced guest speaker, Mrs. Fay J. Mayo, who as a former teacher with her love of learning, and preserving the past, has given enrichment to the education of all ages.

Mrs. Mayo reported on her research project "Contributions of Outstanding Women Educators of Washington C.H. and Fayette County". She showed pictures of the teachers who taught in the community in the 1800's. In future reports, teachers who taught after 1900 will be featured. Families of the teachers had given data from old record and family histories."

Mrs. Mayo opened with the reading of "Early Teacher's School Days" with modern words writen by Mrs. Joan Rhoads. She told the group the former name of Sunnyside School-was Bull's Tail School. The first school was built in Fayette County in 1813 in New Martinsburg.

Mrs. Mayo prefaced her program by reporting some interesting facts concerning the first Ohio school teacher, Bathsheba Rouse (1769-1843), descendant of Mayflower families, who came from Massachusetts to Marietta in 1788. This courageous woman is given credit of planting the first milestone in Ohio's educational system. She also mentioned her own great-grandmother as a pioneer teacher who taught at Rome, Ohio from 1808-1810.

Three pioneer teachers who spent their entire lives in Washington C.H. schools were especially honored. Each taught more than 45 years with a desire to mold lives and shape future citizens rather than have homes of their own.

The late Amy Conn, who taught 49 years in the Washington C.H. schools, received her first orchid on her 84th birthday from a former student who remembered her guidance. The year she retired the students wrote a tribute to her which appeared in the Sunburst, the high school annual. In part, it said: "We are grateful that you have taught us more than just facts to be gleaned from books, and that you have instilled in us the real values of life."

In The Record-Herald in March 1945, an editorial said of Miss Gertrude Channel: "The people knew her to be a strong woman of high ideals, culture and refinement who had the happy faculty of being a mother as much as a teacher, to so many of her pupils. She was worthy of all the fine things that so many people have said about her."

Miss Clara Thurston's death called forth many sincere tributes from countless friends who knew of her fine record as a teacher. Miss Thurston taught 46 years in Washington C.H. grades and Washington High School.

Another early educator-Miss Carolyn Franes Wherritt, born in 1846, in Washington C.H. taught high school subjects on the third floor of the Old Central building before the first high school was built here in 1883. Old Central was built in 1856. The Wendel family, prominent pioneers in Fayette County and Carolyn Franes Wherrit's mother's parents gave five or six acres on North Street for school purposes."

Mrs. Haidee Van Winkle Coffman, one of the most admirable teachers in the history of Washington High School, was a native of Hillsboro. She graduated from college in 1890 and in 1891 came to Washington C.H. and became an instructor in Washington High School. She married Grant Coffman of the Coffman Lumber Company. She died in 1944, after guiding the thoughts of hundreds of students through history and art which she glamorized by her information she secured from her many European trips. The paintings and sculpture which enhance the walls of Washington High School were secured under her supervision.

The Sunburst, the WHS annual, had this to say when she retired from teaching in 1935: "The faculty and student body of WHS will sustain a great loss when Mrs. Coffman retires from the active teaching force of this high school. Mrs. Coffman leaves many priceless reminders of all she had done for the enrichment of the lives of those students who have felt the power of her personality."

Through her influence and under her leadership the annual art exhibits have cultivated a love for good pictures and furnished the means of filling the corridors and rooms with copies of the great masters in painting and sculpture that are the pride and joy of pupils in school and will be a treasured memory to carry through life. In her classroom she made the dead past live again, history under her presentation became a pageant of living figures moving through the ages, rich with the spoils of time - a continuous panorama of human figures. Fortunate is the student who has come under the influence of such a teacher."

During the Bicentennial celebration would be a perfect time to bring a program to the students of Fayette County and city schools.

'An Apple for the Teacher' was presented to Mrs. Mayo with a gift by Mrs. Bitzer. The excellent program was enjoyed by all.

The formal dining room of the spacious Bitzer home was the center of the serving of delicious refreshments. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Thomas Hancock, Mrs. Robert Haigler and Mrs. Gary Hidy.

Speaking up for farm women

CHICAGO (AP) — One of the nation's leading rural magazines says equal rights for farm women are long overdue.

Jim Thomson, editor of Prairie Farmer, says in an editorial: "Women are on the warpath, and we can't say we blame them. Farm women especially have reason to complain. One told us recently that even though she had worked with her husband through 30 years of married life, on his death the government said none of the farm belonged to her."

Thomson feels the role of the farm woman has been changing subtly for many years. A recent Prairie Farmer poll shows that 25 per cent of farm women in the Midwest are taking jobs in town and-or furthering their education.

"The farm woman is no longer restructed to an auxiliary position," says Thomson. "In some cases she never was. But the farm woman generally was limited in what she could do and in what was expected of her. She had minimal education in a society with limited education.

"Women are demanding the recognition they rightfully deserve as equal partners in the farm operation vis-a-vis Social Security, taxation and government regulations," says Thomson.

Miss Wilson, Mr. Dill wed in Jeff Methodist Church

An impressive candlelight service in the Jeffersonville Methodist Church, Sunday evening September 21, solemnized the exchange of marriage vows by Miss Mary Katherine Wilson and David William Dill. The Rev. Albert R. Briggs officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar enhanced by two seven-branch candelabras arranged with foliage and satin bows. Before them were placed two fan shaped vases of chrysanthemums of yellow, white, bronze, and copper, flanked by large lacy palms. Each window in the sanctuary held three tapers, and the pews were marked with aisle hurricane candles, all complimented with green foliage and satin bows.

Mrs. Albert R. Briggs, organist, presented a half hour of enjoyable selections, the traditional Wedding March and Recessional.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ford Wilson, Ohio Rt. 729, Milledgeville, and Mr. Maynard A. Wilson of Washington C.H., and Mr. Dill's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Morlane Dill of Brookville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mark David Wilson. Her floor-length gown of candlelight chiffon featured a round neckline, with handmade Brussels lace forming a bib and cap sleeves. A soft sash encircled the waist and two crushed chiffon roses were the only adornment on the gown. Brussels lace formed the hemline of the gown ending in a circular train. Her veil of candlelight illusion featured both a floor-length veil and an elbow length veil each trimmed with delicate lace. Over-the-elbow champagne kid gloves completed the ensemble. The bridal bouquet was of champagne Fuji mums, stephanotis, baby's breath, and English Ivy with long streamers of champagne satin. The bride's only jewelry was a delicate ivory rose of muted salmon color on a fragile gold chain and matching earrings, worn by her maternal grandmother on her wedding day in 1901.

Mrs. David Smith of Milledgeville, a cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Betsy Hartman of Washington C.H. and Miss Rhonda Hendricks of Octa. Their identically styled gowns of Quiana knit were fashioned with scoop necklines, empire waists with tiny rolled self sashes, bell sleeves with tight cuffs, and softly draped floor-length A-lined skirts. The gowns were Earth colors, Mrs. Smith's an Apricot Ice; Miss Hartman in Sable Brown; and Miss Hendricks in Chrysanthemum Copper. Each carried a small natural tone basket of mums and wore diminutive headpieces of mums, combing the colors of their gowns. Pearl drop necklaces and isotone gloves, gifts of the bride, completed their costumes.

Mrs. Wilson chose a mint green chiffon two-piece floor-length gown for her daughter's wedding. The bodice was of permenantly pleated chiffon, as was the skirt, with long softly draped sleeves and a V-neckline. A fabric gardenia of the same color adorned the waistline. She combined silver accessories and had two Eucharis Lilies pinned on her purse.

The groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of Azalea pink polyester. It was fashioned with a jewelry neckline, empire waist, with openwork ribbon knit yoke. Her hip length jacket was of the same ribbon knit. She wore gold accessories and also had two Eucharis lillies pinned on her purse.

Marine Lance Corporal David Skidmore, of Brookville, served as the best man. Seating the guests were Mark Hiser, the bride's cousin, Leon Denlinger of Brookville, and Alan Ewen of Tiffin. Miss Marcia Market presided at the guest book.

The reception immediately following the service carried the same theme of Earth colors. The bride's table was centered with a four tier candlelight and white, cake, beautifully decorated with scrolls and roses, and topped with a silver cross and entwined wedding bands. Two large hurricane tapers lighted the table and the net ocercloth was formed in large scallops edged with green foliage swags centered with nosegays of mums. Hostesses serving punch and cake to the guests were Mrs. Frank J. Weade, Mrs. Omar A. Schwart, Mrs. Charles T. Hiser, and Miss Markel.

For traveling, the bride changed into a light weight wool slack suit of tiny check heather green and brown, with which she combined a chocolate brown blouse and brandy brown accessories. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage styled from the same flowers as her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Dill a 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, is employed at the J&J restaurant in Washington C.H. She hopes to enter LPN training at Fayette Memorial Hospital in September 1976. Mr. Dill graduated in 1973 from Brookville High School and the International School of Broadcasting, and is a sales representative for WCHO Radio Station in Washington C.H.

Following a honeymoon in Canada, the young couple will be at home to friends on Kohler Drive, Washington C.H.

Hooded for fall

LITTLE SIS — A merry mix of dots and flowers is as fine for a tot as for anybody else. Here the cotton corduroy is made into a hooded pants suit tied with a bow at the elasticized waistband. (Good Lad, of Cone Mills corduroy.)

So she's casting aside the traditional lace and pearl confections that Grandma wore for natural headpieces plucked fresh from the garden. Instead of yards of tulle or long lacey mantillas, she opts for single daisies or tiny rosebuds scattered throughout her long tresses.

Man turns 100 as prison inmate

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Weber, with a boyish twinkle in his eye and a well-groomed handlebar mustache that belie his years, observed his 100th birthday today in the Correctional Medical Center at the old Ohio Penitentiary.

"If I had known I was going to live so long I would have taken better care of myself," quipped Weber, Ohio's oldest prison inmate.

Weber has been in the Ohio prisons system for the past 49 years. He's eligible for parole now, but has no place to go.

Weber spends most of this time in bed or confined to a wheel chair. When he's in a good mood, he quips with the nurses, guards and inmates.

And he's a master of the four-letter vocabulary that breaks prison monotony.

"That's a damn lie," he said, when told a newspaper quoted him as saying he wanted a "bottle of schnapps and an 18-year-old girl" for his birthday.

But when another inmate questioned him about the girl, Weber vowed that any who came around wouldn't be disappointed. "I could handle it," he snapped.

Weber, a native of Hungary, was committed to the penitentiary in 1926 when he was 51. He was convicted of first-degree murder in the death of his 18-month-old daughter.

According to trial records, he tried to shoot his wife but the bullet hit the child she held in her arms. Prison officials say he has outlived all known relatives.

Medical center Supt. S. M. Patterson, who was only a year old when Weber was admitted, said records show he had been turned down for parole eight times although he was always a model prisoner. "That wasn't unusual in the old days to get rejected for that type of an offense," Patterson said. A jury recommendation for mercy saved Weber from the electric chair.

Former Gov. John J. Gilligan commuted the conviction to second-degree in 1972, making Weber eligible for parole. But he had no place to go and doctors suggested he remain in the hospital facility.

"They were hesitant about letting him go to a nursing home because of the care he gets here," said Patterson. "He's everybody's pet. When he feels bad, the nurses and everybody feels bad."

Weber's mind wanders from time to time, but when he's in a good mood the ward rings with his Hungarian songs. And fellow inmates who tease him about his singing get the other side of his tongue—sometimes in Hungarian but often in plain prison English.

Nurse Mary Stagakes ducks when Weber cuts loose with an obscene volley at anybody needling him. But he's "Dad," "Johnny," or simply "J. W." to fellow inmates, nurses and guards.

"I guess I'll come in here some morning and they'll tell me he's gone," said Patterson. "It'll be a bad day for all of us."

Then Patterson brightened, recalling the 500 letters that had poured in wishing Weber well. His face broke into a wide grin when the disputed quote about the 18-year-old girl was mentioned.

"I got a call from an 18-year-old girl this morning volunteering," he said.

Weber was to get a cake and a party. Nobody told him about the girl.

New parking control officer joins force

By MARK THELLMANN

"As long as Ben Gay stays on the market I've got a chance at surviving this job," Myra Shaw of 2219 Rowe Ging Road, laughed as she talked about her new position with the Washington C.H. Police Department as a parking control officer.

Mrs. Shaw has been marching around Washington C.H. streets since Friday ticketing cars, acquiring blistered feet and pulling leg muscles and even though it's been only three days, she admits to liking the job alot.

"I love the outdoors and I've always enjoyed exercising and sports," the pretty 32-year-old redhead stated. "This job is the best of both worlds - I can have both at once."

Mrs. Shaw is a graduate of Greenfield McClain High School. She moved from Greenfield to live in the Fayette County area 16 years ago and is also a licensed beautician. She was schooled and certified in Columbus and has worked at the Antoinette and Connie's beauty shops in Washington C.H.

The federally-funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) created Mrs. Shaw's position with the police department, plus a number of other public service jobs in Washington C.H. and Fayette County. She found out about the job through parking control officer Barney Ellars and Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Tony Wilson.

Mrs. Shaw has three children, David, 11; Traci, 9 and Kristi, 6.

Mrs. Shaw replaces Goldie Dawes in the parking control officer position, according to Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott.

OPEC begins new meeting on oil prices

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The oil cartel began another price-setting conference today amid predictions of an increase in the basic price of crude oil ranging from about 5 to 15 per cent, or from 50 cents to about $1.50 a barrel.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was under pressure from its biggest producer, Saudi Arabia, to keep the increase down. Libya, Iraq and Algeria were urging a price boost of as much as 35 per cent. But Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, the second largest producer, has said he expects no more than a 15 per cent rise.

The present base price is $10.46 for a 42-gallon barrel of Saudi Arabian light crude. Previously, an increase of $1.50 meant a rise in the price of gasoline in the United States of about a cent a gallon because the United States imports only a third of the oil it uses, and there is a government price ceiling of $5.25 a barrel on domestic oil.

But prospective modification of the ceiling and the oil companies' secrecy about their pricing methods makes it impossible to predict future retail prices accurately.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said on his arrival Tuesday night that his government wanted extension of the ninemonth price freeze that expires Sept. 30.

"But since the majority of OPEC members won't go along with this, we will be prepared to accept a nominal increase," he said.

Yamani indicated "nominal" meant 50 cents a barrel, or just below 5 per cent. He said his government "might accept another small, nominal increase at a later date provided there is a long price freeze afterwards."

He indicated, however, that this stand hinges on U.S. willingness to enlarge the proposed international conference on oil to include all major raw materials exported by the Third World countries.

"If there is no dialogue, we would change our position," he said.

Officers named at Laurel Oaks

Officers for the coming school year have been installed by the Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO) Club at Laurel Oaks Career Development Campus, near Wilmington.

The new president of HERO is Bette Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rebe Hamilton of Washington C.H.

Miss Hamilton was the only Fayette County resident to be named as an officer.

Other officers are Joyce Luckey of Fayetteville, Sandy Hager of Clarksville, Christy Throckmorton of Hillsboro, Linda Burns of Leesburg, and Toni Hodson of Wilmington.

The club is associated with the Future Homemakers of America, and installation was conducted during an impressive candlelighting ceremony.

Liquor permit being sought

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control is currently processing an application for liquor permit filed by John L. Sagar Jr., 9084 U.S. 35-S.

The application seeks a permit to sell 3.2 per cent beer for carry-out at the Sagar Dairy depot in Jeffersonville.

The store is located at 1 Main St.

WHAT BIG COLORING BOOKS YOU HAVE! — And that's exactly what they are - big coloring books which every young child should really get a charge out of. They are $3 each (there are two books to choose from "The Night Before Christmas" and "Hector, the Bicentennial Mouse") and they are being sold by the wives of the Washington C.H. Jaycees at the gun show Oct. 4-5. Orders may also be placed by telephoning Carolyn Farris at 335-7591 and Karen Gault at 335-7729 through Dec. 1. Pictured is Robbie Cruea, 2, of 3329 Ohio 41-NW, trying one of the books out. He said they were really neat!

Variety of non-traffic cases heard

A variety of non-traffic cases were aired in Washington C.H. Municipal Court Tuesday afternoon before acting Judge Robert Simpson.

John J. Sutton, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to a check fraud charge lodged by Carter Lumber Co., and was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in the county jail.

Judge Simpson suspended $50 of the fine and the 10-day jail term provided Sutton reimburse the lumber company for the $85.99 bad check.

Joey E. Phillips, 29, of 219 Sycamore St., was fined $100 and costs after he pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct complaint filed by Washington C.H. police. Officers said Phillips was arrested late Saturday night after he became involved in an argument with his sister at the Paint-Delaware street intersection.

Judge Simpson suspended $35 of the fine.

A man involved in a fight at the Washington C.H. police station on N. Fayette Street was fined $30 and costs after he pleaded guilty. Police officers said Charles W. Donohoe, 36, Sabina, was arrested early Sunday after he chased a man into the police station and began hitting him.

Steven C. Stebelton, 19, of 1306 Nelson Place, was fined $35 and costs, after pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace by intoxication. He was arrested on a private warrant filed by James Hoover.

Last ice age evidence sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio State University scientists will search in the Andes of Argentina for evidence of the last ice age in the southern hemisphere.

Drs. John H. Mercer and Thomas A. Ager, research associates at OSU's Institute of Polar Studies, will join an Argentine geologist next month to examine glacial deposits on the east side of the Andes for evidence left by glaciers in the past 15,000 years.

The researchers will collect samples of peat and other vegetation remains in the deposits to obtain radiocarbon dates and fossil pollen.

Company bids for road work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The John G. Ruhlin Construction Co. is the apparent low bidder on a Department of Highways project to relocate the Wooster Ave. bridge in Akron over future innerbelt lanes.

Traffic Court

The following traffic cases were heard Tuesday by Acting Municipal Court Judge Robert Simpson.

Rebecca R. Donohoe, 26, of 726 Washington Ave., was found not guilty of a charge of reckless operation.

Fined:

Dane E. Richey, 26, Columbus, $25 and costs, reckless operation.

Harold H. Smith, 70, Rt. 5, $40 and costs, reckless operation.

Bond Forfeitures:

Deborah L. Sears, 18, Rt. 3, speed excessive for road conditions, $25.

Terry L. Kratzer, 22, Jeffersonville, failure to drive on the right half of the roadway, $25.

Carl E. Barnhart, 28, of 1301 Forest St., expired operator's license, $35; excessive noise, $35.

Deborah Rollins, 27, Hillsboro, permitting an unlicensed driver to drive, $35.

Elizabeth A. Taylor, 36, Piqua, speeding, $25.

Gun control given boost by incident?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Judiciary Committee Chairman Harry J. Lehman thinks the latest presidential assassination attempt could give impetus to gun control hearings he plans in Dayton Thursday.

Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, said Tuesday the latest threat to the life of President Ford was "one of those unfortunate incidents that causes any citizen to become alert to the need for gun control."

His committee, in the first of several hearings planned around the state, will hear testimony for and against gun controls at sessions in the Dayton Muncipal Building Thursday afternoon and evening. Local police and court officials have agreed to testify.

Lehman said the recent slaying in Dayton of a desegregation expert, planning busing for city schools, points up the need for control of handguns.

"If what I want had been law, and if he (the accused slayer) were having known mental problems, he never would have been allowed to have a gun," Lehman said.

The Judiciary Committee chairman was unsuccessful this year in getting any of several proposed bills out of the House Reference Committee.

Lehman said he has decided to take his case "to the people."

Engineering profession topic during Rotary Club's meeting

The engineering profession was discussed at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Don Conley, 6 Willis Court, a relatively new member of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, said the field of engineering has evolved from the old military engineers to civil and consulting engineers.

Conley, a partner in the Gales Helms and Associates, Inc., consulting engineering and surveying firm, 222 N. Oakland Ave., pointed out to fellow Rotary Club members that the military engineers such as the Romans were involved in the construction of the first roadways, bridges and aquaducts. Later they became involved in the construction of castles and fortresses.

Conley, a 1964 graduate of Ohio State University in Columbus with a degree in civil engineering, said the first civil engineers emerged in the late 1700s. Now, civil engineers are primarily involved in the development of large fixed structures.

The civil engineers plan and supervise the construction of airports, dams and city sewage treatment systems such as the multi-million dollar project being proposed for Washington C.H.

Conley, a licensed professional engineer, said consulting engineers are basically involved in providing technical or professional advice. The business which Conley is associated with serves as a consulting engineering and surveying firm for approximately 150 projects per year.

He pointed out that there are all types of specialists in the engineering fields, ranging from welding engineers to surveying engineers. He pointed out there are 16 different types of engineering degrees available to students at Ohio State University.

Conley, a former deputy Fayette County engineer who also serves as a technical advisor to the Washington C.H. City Planning Commission, said a consulting engineer offers seven basic types of services.

The services include a feasibility study to determine the scope of the proposed project; preliminary planning for the various stages of construction and financing; preparation of construction drawings; preparation of specifications; supervision of the bidding process to determine the most qualified firms; financial planning which includes submitting applications for federal or state assistance and estimating the cost of operation once the project has been completed, and serving as a resident project engineer to supervise actual construction.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams and the program was arranged by Howard Miller.

Visiting Rotarians were Wilson Moon of Greenfield, Robert Montenaro of Mount Sterling, and Dr. Walter Felson of Greenfield. Guests were Pete Hackett and Roger Thomas with Willis Geyer, Dr. James McCracken with Paul Crosby and Alan Yeoman with Williams. Student guests were Scott Gerber of Miami Trace High School and Tom Anderson of Washington Senior High School.

Would-be assassin from West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The woman accused of trying to kill President Ford was born in a log house and grew up to be a high school actress and musician.

Now a middle-aged divorce with a 9-year-old son and other grown children, Sara Jane Moore was arrested in San Francisco on Monday, seconds after a shot was fired in the direction on the President.

She was born Feb. 14, 1930, as Sara Jane Kahn, daughter of Olaf and Ruth Kahn. Her mother's maiden name was Moore. Police have taken posession of her records from Charleton schools, including Stonewall Jackson high, where she was graduated in 1947.

The high school yearbook shows her in the drama club and in the school play.

"She was a quiet type child," said Robert G. Williams, her music teacher. "She was a wonderful student and a pretty fair instrumentalist. She played flute in the Stonewall band. I knew her parents real well. They were a nice family."

"Sara Jane was a well-adjusted child and had a good attitude toward life," said a longtime family friend, William R. Wiant. "I liked her best of the children.

One teacher, though, said Sara Jane Kahn "seemed a little odd."

"She was a little more standoffish," said Wade Burdette, a former junior high school teacher. "Some children are very vivacious and outgoing, but others aren't."

"I think she didn't need friends," said another former teacher, Helen Blackwood. "She was not the sort of girl who needed a gang around her."

After graduation, Sara Jane Kahn's trail disappears. Several people in Charleston said she joined the military.

Records in California show that a Sara Jane Kahn married Sidney L. Manning and had two children. Another child, Sidney Kahn of Cincinnati said Tuesday the woman arrested in San Francisco was his mother — but he later denied it.

A family friend in Charleston, who served as executrix for Olaf Kahn's estate, told the Charleston Gazette the three Manning children were adopted in the early 1960s by Olaf and Ruth Kahn. Another family friend, who declined to be identified, said there is a younger daughter, who is retarded and believed to live in a California institution.

U.S. to meet energy goal?

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An Ecuadorian oil official visiting American refineries says he believes the United States will eventually be able to meet its goal of energy independence.

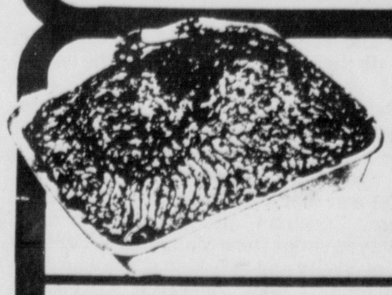

Mario Paz, director of industry and refineries for Ecuador, interviewed during a visit to a Standard Oil of Ohio Co. (Sohio) refinery here, said he was very impressed with American technology.

Paz said he felt confident that the United States could achieve whatever goal it set.

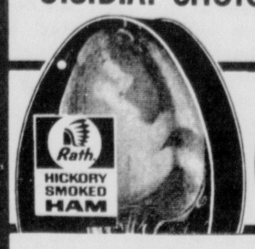

He said his visit to the U.S. was strictly educational, and that he did not intend to negotiate any Ecuadorian oil concessions with American companies during his trip.

Most of Ecuador's oil is now sold in the United States.

Miami Trace riding high; opens SCOL play at Unioto

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Riding high on a wave of three non-league victories and perched in a position to nudge into the Associated Press Class 'AAA' prep poll, The Miami Trace Panthers begin the yearly task of capturing the South Central Ohio League crown when they travel to Unioto Friday.

Miami Trace has posted two convincing wins and has its tough defense to thank for another as the gridders head into Chillicothe, well aware that a big win—point-wise—could give them the necessary votes to move into the state's top ten. The Panthers were just 22 points shy of that mark in Tuesday's first weekly poll.

Miami Trace closed out league play last year with a 16-3 win over the Shermans from Ross County and a wider point margin is expected in this year's league opener against the same school. But, Unioto is fresh from a 12-9 win over county rival Adena, and upset is in coach Mike Shoemaker's game plans.

The Shermans are 2-1 on the year with their only loss coming at the hands of Portsmouth Notre Dame, and Panther mentor Fred Zechman will see some familiar formations when he tries to even the Tanks record for the year.

Shoemaker employs the unusual 4-4 defense that the Panthers so effectively use. Zechman and Shoemaker both played under Gene Slaughter at Capital University and they both share a love of stopping high powered offenses, although Zechman has had a little better success in that area this year.

Shoemaker will have a big, experienced backfield to throw against the Panthers, but the Unioto line is small and inexperienced.

The Tanks lost their whole interior line from tackle to tackle due to graduation, and now the backs outweigh the line by nearly 20 pounds.

Tri-captains Dan Anders, Roger Rutherford and Bob Matson join junior signal caller Scott Daily in the backfield presenting a capable offensive attack, if they make their own holes to run through.

Anders, who rushed for 104 yards against Adena Friday, leads the Shermans in scoring with three touchdowns while Rutherford, a 6-2", 190-pounder, is considered their best back. The Panthers had the distinct pleasure of missing Rutherford last season as an injury sidelined him early in his junior year. As a sophomore, he ran for close to 1,000 yards.

Matson, who at 6'0", 200-pounds is perhaps the strongest player on the squad, ran for 659 yards last season from his halfback position.

Daily seldom puts the ball in the air, but when he does two-year letterman Scott Brumfield is usually on the recieving end. The junior quarterback has completed seven of 14 attempts including a 64-yard strike to Matson for a touchdown.

The Tanks defense rarely stunts according to Miami Trace scouting reports, and its front four closely resemble the Panthers. Brumfield (6'3", 180) and Tony Norman (6'4", 205) are at the ends looking a lot like Bill Warnock and John Schlichter when suited up.

The smallest man on the Tanks team will start at a linebacker position. He is freshman Rick Lansing, who must pack a lot of punch in his 5'3", 120-pound frame to earn a starting berth.

The defense held Adena to just 60-yards rushing last week, but the Shermans should have more trouble with the Panthers, who have ran up over 1,000 yards total offense in three games against bigger and more experienced defenses.

Miami Trace Panther 'players of the week'

GREG COBB

BRUCE ERVIN

The Miami Trace co-captains received the Panther "Players of the Week" award for their performances in Friday's victory over Jackson.

Linebacker Greg Cobb won his third defensive aware of the season with another outstanding performance. He racked up 33 defensive points and 13 individual tackles.

The senior standout also was in on five assists and he capped the night's performance with an 87-yard interception return for a Panther touchdown.

The coaching staff also singled out the defensive performances of Rex Coe, Bruce Ervin, Dan LeBeau and Steve Wilson.

Offensively, Bruce Ervin received the "player of the Week" award. The senior halfback rushed for 120 yards, caught one pass for 19 yards and carried the ball 74 yards for a Miami Trace touchdown.

The Trace coaching staff praised the whole offensive backfield for their performance Friday singling out reserves Neil Spears and Dan Gifford. Guard Steve Waters was also mentioned for his blocking as the Panthers rushed for 365 yards.

Cobb and Ervin also earned the 'Big Lick' awards.

Forecaster sees Buckeye victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You can think what you like about Woody Hayes — he'll tell you himself he's mean — but don't ever accuse him of not being honest.

Ohio State's self-described "mean old coach" doesn't intend to rave about North Carolina, this week's opponent.

"We can't hold this team as highly as the first two," Hayes says. "You don't dare lie to your kids and tell them, 'Gee, we're against a real toughie this week.'"

Having defeated Michigan State 21-0 and Penn State 17-9 and with UCLA coming up next week, will Ohio State suffer a letdown against the 1-1 Tar Heels? "Not when they have a mean old coach," says the mean old coach.

Upset Special of the Week? Not a chance ... Ohio State 42-7.

Last week's forecasting score was 44 right, 20 wrong and two ties for a percentage of .688. For the season, it's 90-46-4— .662.

Oklahoma at Miami, Fla.: The first game of the Sooners' current 22-game winning streak was a 24-20 triumph over Miami thanks to a second-half rally. No. 23 won't be that close ... Oklahoma 48-7.

Purdue at Southern California; for the Boilers, it's out of the Notre Dame frying pan into the Southern Cal fire ... USC 31-13.

Texas Christian at Nebraska: Cornhuskers routed Indiana 45-0 last week and awarded the game ball to The AP's Fred Rothenberg, who picked the Hoosiers. TCU is game, but Huskers have a ball ... Nebraska 42-0.

Wisconsin at Missouri: Badgers battered Mizzou 59-20 last year and the Tigers, who could otherwise be looking ahead to Michigan, want revenge. Ergo ... Missouri 20-14.

Texas Tech at Texas: Tech won last year 26-3 so guess who wants revenge. Darrell Royal welcomes Steve Sloan to the Southwest Conference the hard way ... Texas 28-14.

Northwestern at Notre Dame: Wildcats are unbeaten, too, but not for long ... Notre Dame 28-0.

Illinois at Texas A&M: Firstever meeting gives the Illini something to remember ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Baylor at Michigan: Bears riddled by injuries and Wolverines snarling after 19-19 tie with Stanford. Michigan 17-7.

Alabama at Vanderbilt: Bear Bryant doesn't have Steve Sloan to kick around any more, so he takes it out on Fred Pancoast ... Alabama 30-12.

Penn State at Iowa: Hawkeyes lost to Illinois and Syracuse, now face Penn State, Southern Cal, Ohio State. Penn State 35-7.

Brigham Young at Arizona State: Cougars' hopes for a second straight WAC title get grounded in a hurry ... Arizona State 31-7.

Boston College at West Virginia: Winner retains a shot at the mythical Eastern crown .. . Boston College 27-21.

Auburn at Tennessee: Do the Tigers always beat Tennessee, or does it just seem like it? Auburn 21-17.

Florida at Mississippi State: Gators were beaten by N.C. State, Bulldogs by NCAA ... Florida 27-17.

Maryland at Kentucky: Homecoming for Terp Coach Jerry Claiborne, who used to play at Kaintuck. Maryland 20-10.

NFL contract talks remain at impasse

CHICAGO (AP) — After 20 months of management-union negotiations, the same contract issues, highlighted by the controversial Rozelle Rule, continue to cloud the future of the National Football League.

Two days of collective bargaining discussions ended in a stalemate Tuesday with both sides agreeing that the same basic non-economic issue still plague a possible labor settlement.

With the breakoff in negotiations, the rank-and-file membership of some 950 players will vote beginning Thursday on management's latest contract offer, which representatives of the 26 NFL owners say will cost them about $30 million in new money over a five-year period.

Sentiment among the NFL union leaders, who met here in face-to-face confrontations with owners and into the wee hours among themselves, was that the contract proposal indicated no significant improvement on economic benefits nor a major change in the Rozelle compensation rule.

The union leaders, including the various team player representatives, also indicated that the proposal would be rejected in the vote by the membership.

After that, it's anybody's guess.

There was speculation that the New England Patriots, who triggered the meetings of Monday and Tuesday with their strike last week, would reject the contract proposal unanimously. But no one would venture a prediction if they would again walk out and refuse to play Sunday against the Miami Dolphins at Foxboro, Mass.

Under the memorandum of agreement last Thursday, which brought about management's proposal Monday, there would be three days of negotiations after the offer was made and then five days for the players to vote, the results to be made public by Oct. 2.

At the time, however, the Patriots said they would decide if management had made a meaningful offer. It was understood that the New England team, which had a contingent of some 15 here at their own expense, was frustrated to the point of exasperation by what they believed to be management's unbending stance in the negotiations.

Grambling leads college poll

By The Associated Press

"I'm as happy as a rat locked in a cheesehouse," said Coach Eddie Robinson after he was told that Grambling was ranked No. 1 by The Associated Press in its first weekly college division football poll.

"But at the same time, it makes you a little nervous," Robinson added in a telephone interview from the school's campus at Grambling, La.

"If you're No. 1, you have to play like you're No. 1. Other teams are always out to knock you off, but if you're No. 1 they're going to make a special effort."

Grambling, 3-0, received 11 first-place votes in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters, getting 344 of a possible 490 points.

Western Kentucky, 3-0, was No. 2 with 222 points, including eight first-place votes, while Boise State of Idaho, 2-0, was third with 221 points.

Rounding out the Top 15 were Texas A&I; Jackson State of Mississippi, Idaho State, Eastern Kentucky, Wittenberg of Ohio, Delaware, Henderson State of Arkansas, Northern Michigan, Youngstown State of Ohio, South Dakota State, Abilene Christian and North Dakota.

Grambling opened its 1975 campaign by trouncing Alcorn State 27-3, then routing Morgan State 40-6 and Hawaii 20-6.

"This has been a good team, but a surprising one," said Robinson.

"Grambling has a reputation of starting slow," he explained. "If we can get through the first three games, we can usually go undefeated from there."

"But this year, they just went out and got the points. I don't know if they're a new breed or what they're doing. They're of good size and quickness, but I can't really compare them with previous teams."

Grambling is idle this weekend, but anticipates a major battle in two weeks with Oregon State of the Pac-8 Conference.

"We'll have to play our best ball game," Robinson said. "They aren't going to let a Division II team come out there and defeat a Division I team."

Grambling was seventh-ranked last year with an 11-1 mark, but since then the two top-rated teams of 1974 — Central Michigan and Louisiana Tech — have been reclassified as major college football teams.

Lion linksters drop loop match

Hillsboro edged Weshington C.H. 183-189 in a South Central Ohio League golf match Monday at the Hillsboro Country Club.

John Moore and Greg Tillett were low for the Blue Lions with 46's while Scott Sefton shot a 48 and Gary Fisher carded a 49 to round out the scoring.

Landrum and Coletts won medalists honors for Hillsboro with 44's. The win puts Hillsboro at 3-2 in league play while Washington dropped to 0-6.

The Blue Lion Linksters meet Circleville for the second time this season on Wednesday at the Washington Country Club.

Trace Jr. High league to open

Four teams will be suited up and ready to take the field Thursday at Miami Trace High School, when the county junior high school football league kicks off the season at 5:45 p.m.

Admission price for the two grid contests is 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

Edgewood Sherry wins at Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Edgewood Sherry maneuvered through a muddy track to take a 10-length victory in the feature race at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night.

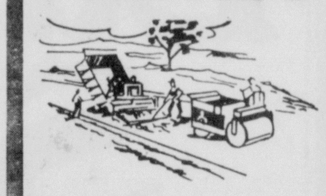

The winning time was 2:11 2-5 for the mile, with the victory paying $5.00, $7.20 and $3.20. Quaker T Byrd, second, returned $9.20 and $4.20. Marinekker was the show horse at $3.60.

The daily double paid $195.60 on the 3-7 combination.

Norman tosses 4 hitter to pace Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson says Fred Norman has been pitching well the past several weeks.

Norman allowed only four hits through eight innings Tuesday night as the Reds edged the Houston Astros, 5-3.

"Fred's pitching just like he did last season before he got hurt," Anderson said. "That makes seven games in a row he has pitched well for us."

Norman, 12-4, allowed early home runs by Cliff Johnson and Larry Milbourne and left in favor of Rawly Eastwick at the start of the ninth.

Tony Perez' double in the fourth inning drove in what prove to be the winning run for the Reds.

Perez' double scored Joe Morgan, who had led off the inning with a single.

The Reds pushed across three runs off Houston starter Mike Cosgrove in the third inning. Singles by Bill Plummer, Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo accounted for one run. After Norman sacrificed Pete Rose singled in both Griffey and Geronimo.

The Astros cut the lead to 3-1 on Cliff Johnson's 18th home run in the bottom of the second, but the Reds matched it in the third on Joe Morgan's infield hit and Perez' double.

The Astros pulled within one run, 4-3, in the third on Larry Milbourne's first home run of the season which followed a single by Roger Metzger.

The Reds added their final run in the eighth when Griffey doubled, stole third and scored on Geronimo's ground out.

Eastwick pitched the ninth for Cincinnati and retired the side in order to post his 20th save of the season. Cosgrove took the loss, his second against one victory.

Norman struck out four and did not walk a batter in his eight innings. It was Norman's fourth victory of the year over the Astros and gave the Reds a 12-5 lead in the season series.

Duffy Dyer got the royal treatment from the Pittsburgh Pirates — and in this case, it included beer, cold cuts, sliced tomatoes, a face cloth, a cigar and a stomach acid pill.

That's what he found on his stool Tuesday night after helping the Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 — along with a lane of towels leading to his locker.

"This is a 21-towel salute, I guess," Dyer kidded. "These guys are crazy, no question."

Dyer lashed three singles, including a run-scoring hit in the sixth when the Pirates scored three runs to give Bob Moose his winning cushion.

The Pirates, who clinched the National League East by beating the Phillies the night before, were obviously at ease with the pressure off. The postgame horseplay included loud cheers when Dyer walked the towel carpet to his locker and found the postgame meal.

In the other National League games, the San Diego Padres whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Houston Astros 5-3; the Montreal Expos blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 7-0 and the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 8-6. Rain washed out the Atlanta-San Francisco game.

The champagne in Oakland's dressing room has been on ice for three days — and so have the A's.

Oakland's magic number has been at one and holding since Saturday night when they stretched their American League West Division lead to eight games. Since then the Kansas City Royals have won three, the A's have lost three and the lead is down to five.

All of which leaves Oakland Manager Alvin Dark unmoved.

"It would be silly to be concerned when you're five ahead with five to go," said Dark after the A's dropped a 4-3 decision to Minnesota Tuesday night. "To tell you the truth I'm really not concerned about anything.

"But," Dark added, "We'd like to win it soon and get it over with."

Kansas City kept its hopes alive with a 4-0 triumph over Texas but Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog smiled when asked about overtaking the A's.

"They'll never lose that many games in a row," Herzog said. "We've won 89 games and I thought in the winter that 89 would win it."

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland edged Milwaukee 4-3, Chicago shaded California 5-4 and the BostonNew York and Detroit-Baltimore games were rained out. The Red Sox remain four games ahead of the Orioles in the AL East.

Minnesota right-hander Bert Blyleven, 15-9, checked the A's on nine hits and struck out seven. Rod Carew doubled home a run for the Twins off Stan Bahnsen, 10-13, in the first, Steve Braun hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and Dan Ford doubled home two runs in the eighth.

Bert Campaneris had a runscoring single in the eighth for Oakland and Joe Rudi made it close with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth.

A's ace Vida Blue goes for th clincher tonight against Chicago's Jesse Jefferson, 5-10.

Kansas City used four pitchers to two-hit the Rangers. Doug Bird started but left in the second inning after injuring his arm. Rookie Bob McClure came in and continued the nohitter until Roy Smalley singled with one out in the seventh. Steve Mingori and Marty Pattin finished up.

Frank White hit a home run for the Royals.

Relations between U.S., Puerto Rico to be eyed

By JOSE F. SERRA
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — In the coming months, the Congress in Washington will try to redefine the relationship between Puerto Rico and the United States. Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon predicts the road to agreement will be full of obstacles.

For one thing, Congress will be working with a proposed compact that would shift power over Puerto Rican affairs from Capitol Hill to the White House. Well informed sources here don't expect Congress to part easily with its prerogatives in U.S.-Puerto Rican affairs.

For another, the proposed new compact would enlarge the autonomy of the Puerto Rican Commonwealth government, giving the island government primary authority for labor relations, minimum wages and environmental affairs. This, too, could spark heavy congressional opposition.

For a third, if Congress does approve the compact it must then be submitted to the people of Puerto Rico in a referendum and three parties are already campaigning against it: the New Progressive party, which wants statehood, and the Socialist party and Independence party, which want independence.

The relationship between Puerto Rico and the United States is unique to the American system. Puerto Rico voted in 1952 to become the first commonwealth of the United States and over the past 23 years, Congress has traditionally had final authority on all matters concerning the island.

Its three million residents are U.S. citizens but do not pay federal income taxes. The United States is responsible for the island's defense, foreign affairs and foreign trade. In fiscal 1974, federal aid to Puerto Rico for housing, health, education and other programs totaled $1.27 billion.

The compact proposals, which are the result of two years of work by a U.S.-Puerto Rican commission headed by former Gov. Luis Munoz Marin and former U.S. Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., would give the U.S. President and Puerto Rico's governor new powers.

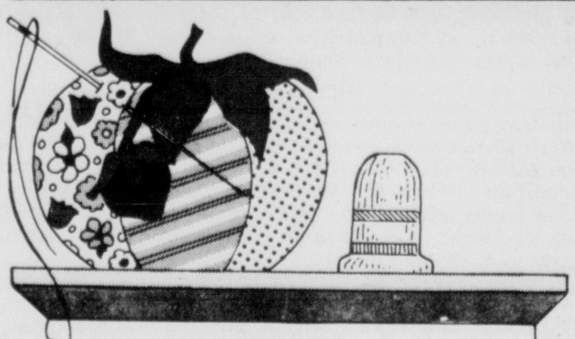

A six-man joint commission would be created to handle a broad range of U.S.-Puerto Rican matters and the two chief executives would be given new authority to act in key areas such as defense, immigration and commercial dealings.

Puerto Rico's governor would be authorized to enter into direct contact with the White House on such matters as unemployment, land transfers, special tariffs and problems relating to aliens. Puerto Rico would also gain the right of bilateral say regarding any basic changes in future relations with the United States.

In addition, the compact would add a second resident non-voting commissioner from Puerto Rico to the Senate.

Dry beans spark research

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press Writer

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Complaints about musty or moldy flavors in processed dry beans — in products such as chili and pork and beans — have caused the West Coast industry to begin an emergency research program, officials say.

Professors at Washington State University and the University of Idaho are seven months into studies they hope will reveal why some processed beans don't taste or smell good, despite normal cooking and handling.

Some persons estimate that up to 10 per cent of the 1972 and 1973 crops were afflicted by the off-flavor problem. Up to 5 per cent of the 1974 crop has been rejected in some places, one of the professors said, though it is still too early to tell whether the mysterious problem lingers.

"If this problem continued into the 1974 crop, the threat to all segments of the dry bean industry was indeed serious," said John Sacklin, food science director of Nalley's Fine Foods and an organizer of the research effort. "The economic implications to our own Pacific Northwest agribusiness is extensive."

Some estimates of the loss have ranged as high as $10 million in Washington and Idaho last year. Michigan and California are the two top bean states, but in Idaho, the 1974 crop was 2.5 million hundredweight, mainly of pinto beans. They are valued at $63.8 million.

Washington's 1974 production was 494,000 hundredweight, worth an estimated $12.66 million.

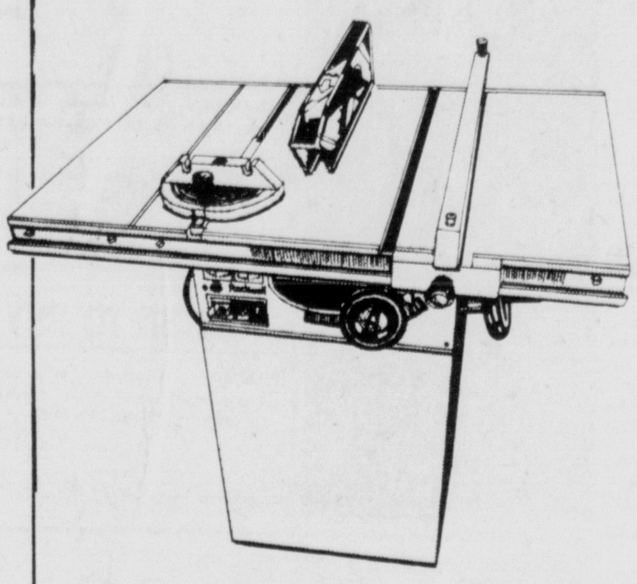

Heading the research are Dr. Barry Swanson at WSU and Dr. John Montoure at UI Moscow. Swanson is examining dried beans for mold content and Montoure is cooking up batches of dry beans in a commercial process to see if handling methods result in musty flavors.

They say that harvest-time moisture may be the cause, though nothing is known yet for sure.

Find the Cause of Bursitis

About three times a year I get an attack of bursitis in my right shoulder. It comes on suddenly. Is there some way that this can be prevented?

Mr. T.H.T., Calif.

Dear Mr. T.:

Any member of the "bursitis club" knows how miserable it can be to have an attack of acute bursitis.

The pain is excrutiating. This, coupled with the inability to move the arm, can mean almost total incapacitation.

A few things are known about the cause of bursitis in the shoulder. Lifting a heavy weight, an injury, even as off-balance swing of a tennis racket or a golf club can set bursitis in motion. Exposure to draft may be responsible, too.

A bursa is a flat sac that normally contains a lubricating fluid. There are about 150 bursae in various parts of the body. They act as the lubricating, ball-bearing system.

Bones, tendons, joints and muscles that constantly move against each other are protected against the irritation of friction by these well-placed bursae.

When the bursa becomes inflamed, the need for rest is automatically imposed on the body. The sharp pain is the body's protective device to make sure that the shoulder joint will remain immobile.

The ideal way to prevent recurring attacks of bursitis is to try to track down its cause and then avoid it.

More and more attention is being paid to the possibility that gout may be one of the unsuspected reasons for bursitis, especially if there is no evident source of injury to the shoulder joint. This should be ruled out since you have recurring attacks.

When the first twinges of pain occur, don't try to "work out" the pain with exercise, massage or manipulation. This tends only to precipitate an agonizing attack. Rest of the shoulder joint is urgent, preferably with a sling.

Today, the use of cortisone, ACTH, X-ray treatments, ultrasonic vibrations, application of cold packs and injections of anesthetics into the joints can relieve the pain and speed recovery.

It is surprising how often people overlook the fact that the cause may be using a machine like a drill press, or twisting their arms in unusual ways while at work. Try to review all the forces that exert pressure on your shoulder, either at work, in sports, or in the home.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Bridge is not a lazy man's game — if you want to get the best results possible. You just can't sit there, make only mechanical bids and plays, and expect to do well. You have to spend lots of time trying to figure out what everybody has, and follow these thoughts through to a logical conclusion.

Here is a type of problem occasionally encountered. Assume you're in four spades and West leads a diamond. East takes the king with the ace and returns the five, which West wins with the ten. West continues with the queen, East discarding a club as you ruff.

Let's say you enter dummy with a club and play a spade to the queen, losing the finesse to the king. East later scores another trump trick and down you go.

The sad fact is that all this could happen in quite a few bridge games and nobody would pay any attention to it. The players would think South was unlucky to lose the trump finesse and attribute the outcome to bad luck.

It is actually not difficult to figure out that East cannot have the king of spades and that a finesse must be a losing proposition. Once East shows up with the ace of diamonds at trick one, it must be assumed that he cannot have the king of spades also. He would surely not pass one diamond with an ace and a king.

Declarer should therefore play the ace and a low spade, instead of finessing, in the hope of finding West with the doubleton king. It is the only real chance he has of making the contract, and the only straw he can sensibly grab at.

Claim large phone firms being unfair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for the Ohio Communications Association charged today that telephone utility systems are trying to force private telephone equipment companies out of business through "unfair and illegal competition."

James Cotesworth, president of the association, made the accusation during testimony before the Legislative Joint Select Committee on Energy.

The association says it represents the interests of sellers and consumers of privately owned telephone terminal equipment including telephones, switchboards and answering devices.

Cotesworth said there were several instances of illegal discriminatory pricing by telephone utilities. He said rate increases for residential and business lines where there is no competition have been dramatic since 1970.

At the same time, he said, rates have not increased proportionally for terminal equipment where the utilities face competition. The home owner, he charged, is being forced to carry an unfair burden for the lower priced terminal equipment provided business firms.

Cotesworth said that documents on file with the Federal Communications Commission show that American Telephone and Telegraph plans to lose $127 million on one small business system. He said the losses would be recovered by raising residential and business line rates.

Cotesworth charged that the Ohio Public Utilities Commission is either unwilling or unable to protect the public against alleged discriminatory practices by the telephone companies. He proposed legislative reform.

Ample rain fell in eastern and southern Ohio Tuesday and last night, as the state felt about the only effects it's going to get from former hurricane Eloise.

In northwestern Ohio, only a trace was reported in Findlay, and none in Toledo. The heaviest amounts in Ohio were in the southeast part. Just across the Ohio River, Parkersburg, West Virginia, had 2.25 inches of rain in the past 24 hours.

Early this morning, radar reports showed that the intensity and the area covered by the rain was decreasing. The storm was centered over the mountains of western Virginia this morning and was weakening.

Brisk northerly winds today in Ohio were expected to keep temperatures about the same as Tuesday, when the highs generally hovered around 60. Lows overnight were 50 to 55.

Little change is seen for Thursday, with expected highs of 60 to 65, along with a chance of rain.

A chance of showers Friday and Saturday, fair Sunday. Highs in the 60s. Lows in the 40s.

Set truce in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese and Palestinian leaders have agreed to halt fighting and withdraw their warring gunmen from all suburbs of this embattled capital, Premier Rashid Karami announced today.

"As of 1700 (10 a.m. EDT) Wednesday all armed elements are to be withdrawn from all Beirut suburbs and all roadblocks, gun positions and observation posts are to be removed," Karami said in a nationwide broadcast.

The new truce was agreed on at a meeting of Karami, Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam and Palestinian guerrilla leaders Yasir Arafat, Zuhair Mohsen and Abul Hassan.

"All acts of violence are to come to end at once in all areas and all parties are to release the abducted persons," Karami said.

The announcement followed another night of machine-gun battles, bomb blasts and fires despite the cease-fire agreement last weekend.

Shoplifting incident checked

A 16-year-old Washington C.H. boy has been arrested and charged by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department with theft through shoplifting.

Rick L. Malott, 520 N. North St., was stopped by employes at Seaway, 1270 Clinton Ave., after he was observed to remove an auto distributor cap valued at $2.80 from its package, put it inside his pants and attempted to leave the store without paying for it. The alleged incident occurred at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. Malott has been released to his parents.

Sheriff's deputies also reported a burglary, while the Washington C.H. Police Department reported a personal injury, an incident of vandalism, a breaking and entering and a case of malicious destruction.

Madison Mills Elementary School was entered between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday by someone who stole a total of $16.23 from school desks. Deputies are investigating the theft.

A front window at Lord's, 221 E. Court St., valued at $113.20, was broken between 4:30 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, Washington C.H. police reported.

The Charles Creech home at 611 E. Market St., was entered between 7:30 a.m. and 4:10 p.m. Tuesday and $25 worth of food was taken from the refrigerator and kitchen cabinets and carried off in two green five-gallon plastic buckets which had been standing on the porch. Police are investigating.

A car belonging to Golden Davis, 629 S. North St., was scratched on the right front fender with a knife while parked at Buckeye Mart, Columbus Avenue, at 4 p.m. Sept. 17, police reported today. They also stated the molding around the passenger window had been cut and estimated total damage at $74.45.

Paul Underwood, 63, of 821 Vine St., fell at 11 a.m. Tuesday in his home and injured his back. Police dispatched an ambulance and Underwood was admitted to Fayette Memorial Hospital, where he is presently listed in satisfactory condition.

A 20-inch bicycle has been removed by city police near the railroad tracks at the end of N. Fayette Street.

Three youths nabbed for tavern burglary

Three Washington C.H. youths have been arrested and charged by the Washington C.H. Police Department with breaking and entering after an investigation headed by Washington C.H. Police Specialist Larry Hott into the burglary of the Rocking Chair Bar, 428 Wilson St., which occurred between 3 a.m. and 4:18 a.m. Sunday.

The trio, consisting of two juveniles (ages 16 and 17) and Dean E. Groves, 18, of 1143 Rawlings St., allegedly entered the building by cutting a window screen and once inside pried the cigarette, bowling and air hockey machines plus a juke box, taking more than the original $30 police suspected stolen.

The 16-year-old has been released to a parent, the 17-year-old is presently incarcerated in the Fayette County juvenile detention facility and Groves is being held in the city jail in lieu of $2,500 bond. Police stated additional charges are pending against the three.

Deputies charge pair of drivers

A Bloomingburg woman and an Alcoa, Tenn. man were cited by Fayette County Sheriff's deputies in two non-related traffic accidents Tuesday. Deputies also investigated a third accident which they reported as minor.

A car driven by Betsy E. Hagler, 26, of Bloomingburg, traveled left of center on Ohio 38, two-tenths of a mile south of Yatesville-Wissler Road at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and struck a fence belonging to Bob Hagler, Rt. 2, and an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. junction box. Her car was slightly damaged and she was cited by sheriff's deputies for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway.

A semi-truck driven by Vincent R. Cardin, 38, Alcoa, Tenn., traveled onto the median strip of I-71 near the Ohio 38 exit and jack-knifed at 11:15 p.m. Tuesday. The truck was minorly damaged and Cardin was cited by deputies for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway.

Cars driven by Charlyn J.Estep, 22, of 331 Grove Ave., and Kenneth E. Payton, 22, of 522 Peddicord Ave., collided in the Roller Haven parking lot, CCC-Highway-W, at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Damage to both autos was estimated as slight and neither driver was injured nor charged.

Blast rips Newark motel

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — An early-morning explosion, which police said apparently was caused by a bomb, caused extensive damage to a new Sheraton Motor Inn under construction in downtown Newark.

The blast, which occurred at 12:10 a.m., shattered windows in a nearby post office, homes and businesses and was heard as far as four miles away.

No injuries were reported.

The owners of the 120-room motel said they had received phone calls threatening the Sheraton project and others they have under construction.

Local trade unions have picketed the project since construction began early this year, protesting the nonuse of local trade union members on the project.

No dollar estimate of damage was immediately available.

Trotwood-Madison schools reopened

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Trotwood-Madison School District was to open its six schools on a normal schedule today after being closed two days and operating on a piecemeal schedule for two more as the result of racial flareups. The schools were closed last Wednesday as a series of racial incidents which began on school buses spread to school property. Freshman and seniors attended classes Monday, and sophomores and juniors Tuesday.

Teachers without classes and volunteer parents have been serving as monitors on the buses and in the classrooms. The Trotwood-Madison School District has five elementary schools.

Teachers in the district have threatened to go on strike over salary demands but postponed any walkout until the racial unrest stabilizes, spokesmen said.

Firemen respond to faulty alarm

Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to Court House Manor Nursing Home for the second time in two days because of a faulty fire detection alarm.

The alarm sounded at 12:01 p.m. Tuesday and originally at 2:48 p.m. Monday. There were no fires at the 250 Glenn Ave. location.

SURE SIGN OF FALL — Fall began on the calendar Tuesday, but previous to the official date, signs were evident it was on its way. Dead leaves which had already undergone their annual color change were starting to collect on the sidewalks while other leaves completing the cycle would be soon to join them. The air was found to be a little brisk in the mornings and chilling in the evenings. Most evident of all was the fact the majority of those getting up for work in the mornings found themselves groping around in the dark for a lightswitch - the twilight of fall was bringing on the night of winter. One additional sign of fall is those bright orange balls called pumpkins and pictured is Rosalind MacFarland of 421 Mulberry St. and her dog Fifi, as they discover one such fruit in their garden. Mrs. MacFarland's son, Todd, planted the pumpkin seed last year and mom and son plan to carve the pumpkin for Halloween, make a pie and plant some more pumpkins - all that from one seed!

State would take over from counties

Big welfare change urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's welfare system should be administered entirely by the state rather than be shared with Ohio's 88 counties, the Governor's Council for Cost Control said Tuesday.

In its fifth of sixth reports on proposals to save money in state operations, the council said the move would save an estimated $10 million a year.

It said savings would result from administration changes and elimination of redundant operations. The council said the changeover would not affect the level of payments in any assistance category.

Based on the experience of comparable state-administered programs elsewhere, the council said about 1,000 welfare positions could be phased out by going to a centralized system.

The council said there are 11,000 welfare employes in the current system, including 800 at the state level and 10,400 at the county level.

"With a centralized system, the state could establish welfare offices in concentrated population areas, regardless of county boundaries," the council said. It said procedural requirement could be handled more effective by these offices.

Other recommendations for the welfare department:

—Obtain employer and unemployment compensation information from the Bureau of Employments Services and quarterly social security information from the Social Security Administration to help determine unreported or underestimated income and reduce errors on Aid for Dependent Children recipients, at an estimated $5.2 million annually.

—Create a management system for public assistance programs, aided by a statewide network of computers, which would cost the state $5 million to install but could save it $88 million a year.

—Improve the Ohio Medicaid program, which had expenses of $291 million last year, to save about $10 million in federal and state funding.

The council also suggested the field supervisory staffs of the bureaus of vocational rehabilitation and services for the blind be combined to save about $400,000 in state and federal funds.

Three public information officer jobs in district offices of the Bureau of Employment Services should be eliminated and computer terminals should be installed in all OBES local offices to expedite the handling of claims, the council said. It noted that OBES has already elminated five of the public information posts.

Other suggestions:

—Discontinue the Governor's Youth Action Program, which the council said duplicates other Ohio Youth Commission and community programs.

—Sell 500 acres of state land separated from the Fairfield School for Boys by privately owned land.

—Establish an effective food program at correction institutions, use inmate labor in food preparations at such institutions and sell 750 acres of farmland at Southern Ohio Correctional Facility.

—Cut overtime costs at seven penal institutions and improve probation services to help reduce the number of persons sentenced to prison.

—Allow the more than 180,000 employers who pay unemployment taxes on a quarterly basis to put their money in designated banks rather than send it to Columbus and allow BES to invest the funds.

The council, headed by Frank E. Cheney of Lima, is to issue its final "mini-report" Thursday.

Patty says she was brainwashed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, who once derided speculation she was brainwashed, now swears that she lied under duress when she told of her rebirth as the revolutionary "Tania."

Miss Hearst's written testimony, which contradicts many of her tape recorded pronouncements from the underground, is likely to be hotly disputed in court.

The 21-year-old heiress declares in an affidavit that she was driven to insanity by her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers. She says they tortured her physically and mentally. She says she was blindfolded, bound and locked in a closet for weeks while constantly threatened with death.

"Finally, under the pressure of these threats, deprivation of liberty, isolation, and terror, she felt her mind clouding, and everything appeared so distorted and terrible, that she believed and feared that she was losing her sanity," says the affidavit, filed in support of a motion that she be released on bond.

The document suggests that Miss Hearst, who declared that she had joined the terrorist band that kidnaped her, might still be insane.

Even now, captured and jailed, Miss Hearst says she remembers little of what happened to her after April, 1974 — two months after her abduction — and feels "as though she lived in a fog."

Her mother has compared Miss Hearst to a brainwashed prisoner of war. And a federal judge ordered on Tuesday that Miss Hearst undergo psychiatric examination.

The process of selecting a psychiatric panel was expected to be completed by next Tuesday when Miss Hearst returns to court. U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter said he would not consider setting bail until the psychiatric report is in.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., who seeks to try Miss Hearst on bank robbery and weapons charges, said, "I am looking forward to the opportunity of cross-examining Miss Hearst on the stand, assuming she is competent to stand trial."

He was expected to point up inconsistencies between Miss Hearst's sworn affidavit and her earlier actions and tape recorded comments.

The affidavit did not explain her apparent signals of continued revolutionary ardor since her arrest — clenched fist salutes, greetings to comrades and self-description on her booking sheet as an "urban guerrilla."

The seven-and-a-half page document, prepared and submitted by a team of defense attorneys, ignored a 17-month period during which Miss Hearst was a fugitive.

During that time she declared in one tape recording that she "died" with six SLA comrades in a May 1974 shootout with Los Angeles police and was reborn to new revoluntionary fervor.

"I know what I have to do," she said in that tape of June 7, 1974. "My comrades didn't die in vain. While I have no death wish, I have never been afraid of death. For this reason, the brainwash-duress theory of the pig Hearsts has always amused me."

The affidavit says, "She needs help and counseling to restore herself to complete sanity and to the life she led before the terrible experience which she underwent at the hands of this criminal gang brought her to the condition she is now in."

The affidavit's tale of terror and torment begins with Miss Hearst's abduction at Berkeley, Calif., on Feb. 4, 1974, and ends when she says she was forced to help rob a San Francisco bank on April 15, 1974. For many of these weeks, she recalls being locked in a closet.

"The closet was hot and extremely uncomfortable," the affidavit said. "She was given food but was unable to eat any for a period of about ten days, and for all that period was unable to dispose of her body wastes."

It said that the SLA member "Cinque," escaped convict Donald DeFreeze, brought tape recorders into the closet on which she recorded widely distributed statements.

When her blindfold was removed, "she felt as if she were on some LSD trip; everything was out of proportion, big and distorted.

"She heard constant threats against her life and saw that all of her captors were armed with revolvers, shotguns and other weapons."

The affidavit suggests the kidnapers' most potent weapon in a battle for Miss Hearst's mind were constant reports that her parents had abandoned her and would let her die.

When she returned recently to San Francisco, it was to find out if her parents still loved her, the affidavit says.

The document said the SLA's pressure finally broke her.

"She finally came to the realization that she was becoming insane, and fought to ward off this condition," the affidavit says.

The document does not mention the April 4, 1974, tape in which Miss Hearst announced she had taken the name "Tania" and decided voluntarily to stay with the SLA.

"I have never been forced to say anything on any tape," she declared then. "Nor have I been brainwashed, drugged, tortured, hypnotized or in any way confused. As George Jackson wrote, 'It's me, the way I want it, the way I see it.'"

Eleven days later, she was photographed holding an automatic rifle on customers during a robbery of a branch of the Hibernia Bank. Her affidavit says she was forced to participate under threat of death.

After the robbery, Miss Hearst said in another tape, "As for being brainwashed, the idea is ridiculous to the point of being beyond belief."

The affidavit contends her words were the lies of an insane woman.

But other statements in the tapes could be used in her defense. She refers frequently to abandonment by her parents and a fear that the FBI would kill her — ideas the defense says were part of the brainwashing.

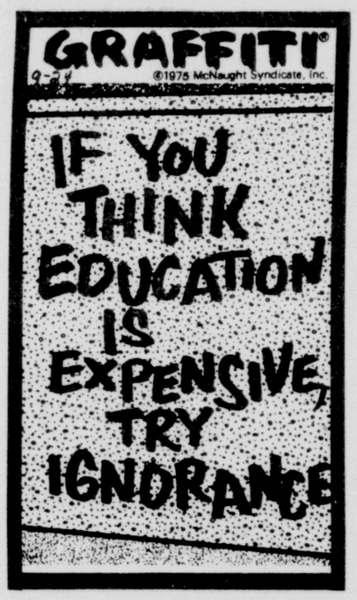

The statements, which may be a

Handicapped receive assistance

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. has generously donated 15 more TTY units to the DEAF, a Washington C.H.-based organization for the hearing handicapped.

A TTY is a typewriting unit which can be connected to a telephone to transmit messages. A typewriter message can be sent from one unit, and it will automatically be retyped on a similar unit to provide communications between deaf persons.

Although the units will require some modification to become adaptable to telephone usage, the conversion is not overly complex, and DEAF hopes to have several of the units operational in the near future.

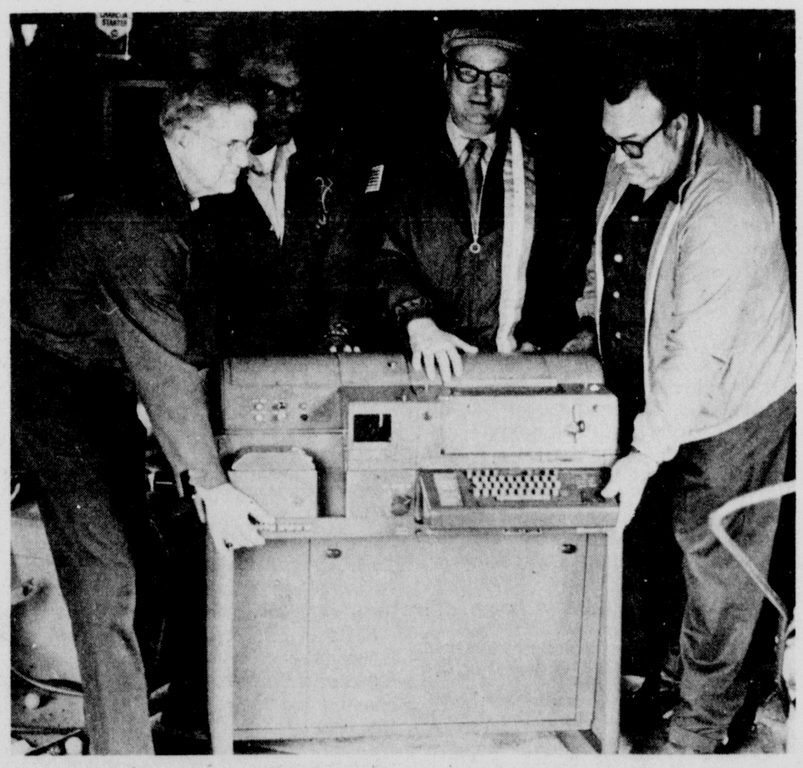

Seven of the units are capable of reading pre-taped messages. Emergency warnings for approaching bad weather or other messages can be taped beforehand and then fed into the TTY whenever necessary. This advantage makes contacting a large number of deaf persons much easier than typing the message of each person individually.

The eight smaller units will be distributed by DEAF to area residents.

Some may also be offered to Ross County which has expressed an interest in creating a TTY communications system for its residents. Ross County has already organized a special class for its sheriff's deputies to improve communications with the deaf. Miss Janet Duvall, president of Deaf, will instruct the course in understanding the deaf.

Until the units can be converted and distributed, they will be stored at the homes of Dale Butler, Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy, and Has Montgomery, 923 Washington Ave.

The units arrived from Ohio Bell's Columbus facility Wednesday morning.

COMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT — Has Montgomery (left), Esto Haithcock, Jim Venz and Bob Wood unloaded the first shipment of TTY units for DEAF, Inc., Wednesday morning. The machines were donated by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Columbus. Wood, Venz and Haithcock are members of the Ohio Bell Pioneer's Club which has been instrumental in obtaining equipment for DEAF since its inception this year. Venz and Billy Palmer drove to Columbus to pick up the units.

Appeals court rules against Demo bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats say they will decide later this week whether to push further through the state's court system with six partisan bills enacted early this year by the Democrat-controlled legislature.

The 10th District Court of Appeals ruled 3-0 Tuesday that the Franklin County Common Pleas Court was correct in ruling last June that the bills are invalid. The next step would be an appeal to the Ohio Supreme Court.

Peter Kinder, assistant in the office of Democratic Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who argued the case for Democratic leaders of the legislature, said he wanted to confer "with my clients" before letting them decide on the appeal.

He said he continues to believe Democrats have "a sound case", but wanted more time to study Tuesday's decision by the all-Republican appeals court.

Common Pleas Judge Frederick T. Williams, who issued the original decision, is a Republican, as are five of the seven justices of the Ohio Supreme Court.

The aging legal controversy started last January during the legislature's so-called "six day war", when Democrats for one week controlled the governor's office as well as both houses of the legislature.

They rushed through the six bills and sent them on to then Gov. John J. Gilligan for his signature, bypassing GOP Lt. Gov. John W. Brown who still had a few hours remaining in his term. The act set the stage for the suit to invalidate the legislation by Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, and others.

Maloney contended, and the courts thus far have agreed, that the lieutenant governor's signature on the legislation was a constitutional requirement. Kinder maintained that the signature was only "symbolic ... not substantive," and that otherwise the lieutenant governor would enjoy the power of veto over legislative enactments.

Tuesday's decision, signed by Presiding Judge Robert E. Holmes along with Judges Archer Reilly and John W. McCormac, held that there were no errors in the lower court decision.

William Brownfield, counsel for Maloney, had argued that the constitutional requirement for the lieutenant governor's signature was "stated clearly ... we don't contend that the lieutenant governor has any veto power whatsoever."

Probers discover CIA opened Presidential mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency regularly opened and read the mail of former President Richard M. Nixon and other prominent Americans including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as part of its 20-year mail surveillance program, the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said today.

A spokesman for Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said that Nixon's mail had been opened both before and while he was President. The spokesman added that the CIA opened and read the mail of other presidents as well.

In an opening statement as the committee began a second day of hearing on the so-called Huston Plan, Church listed a number of prominent American citizens and institutions who had been a target of the CIA's mail surveillance.

In addition to Nixon and Kennedy, Church said the mail of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., the late civil rights leader Martin Luther King and his wife, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, the Ford Foundation, Harvard University and the Rockefeller Foundation also was opened.

Church did not specify what evidence on which he based his statement but his committee has had complete access to CIA files on the mail surveillance program. His remarks indicated that he has personally seen a copy of a letter in CIA files that he had written to his mother.

Church did not make clear during what period of time the mail of the individuals and institutions he mentioned was opened nor did he give any indication of the quantity of mail opened. However, he said the letters had been "regularly opened and scrutinized by the CIA."

In its investigation of the CIA's domestic activities, the Rockefeller Commission outlined the agency's mail surveillance program under which letters between the United States and the Soviet Union were opened from 1953 to 1973.

However, the Rockefeller report made no mention of the individuals whose mail was intercepted.

With the exception of Bella Abzug, none of the names mentioned by Church had previously been disclosed as objects of CIA mail surveillance.

Abzug had revealed the CIA's opening of her mail several months ago after requesting and receiving her file from the CIA.

The leadoff witness at today's hearing was James J. Angleton, the CIA's former chief of counterintelligence and a principal figure in the mail opening program.

Meanwhile, a document was expected to be introduced in the committee today that may explain why then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover blocked security agency plans to use wiretaps, break-ins and mail openings to spy on Americans.

The committee's chief counsel, F. A. O. Schwarz Jr., described the document as a July 1970 memo from Hoover to then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The Hoover document apparently had never been disclosed before and was not submitted by the FBI to either the Senate Watergate or House Judiciary committees.

Schwarz said that he felt the memo contradicted previous assertions that Hoover had objected to the Huston plan tactics on the grounds that they were improper. However, he said the document would be subject to different interpretations.

Former presidential aide Tom Charles Huston told the panel Tuesday that the plan which bears his name was the brainchild of various intelligence agencies, not the Nixon White House. "Whatever recommendations I made" for use of clearly illegal tactics "were

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sara Moore, ordered to undergo sanity tests after firing a pistol at President Ford, has only a "cloudy" memory of the assassination attempt, her attorney says.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff on Tuesday directed that the 45-year-old divorced mother of one be taken to San Diego on Friday and given psychiatric tests at the Metropolitan Correctional Center there. He said results would be reported to him by Nov. 18.

Arrested immediately after she fired at Ford as he emerged from a downtown hotel Monday, Mrs. Moore was held in lieu of $500,000 bail on a federal charge of trying to assassinate the President. If convicted, she faces a possible life sentence.

An ex-Marine deflected her chrome-plated .38-calibre revolver and the shot missed the President, slightly injuring a bystander.

Public defender James Hewitt told newsmen after Tuesday's hearing that Mrs. Moore's state of mind is "vague" and that she is "cloudy" about details of the incident Monday.

"I told her a mental examination probably would be ordered, and she seemed resigned to the fact," Hewitt said. "Her spirits are as good as could be expected."

"I don't know whether she's competent to stand trial," said U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. He said he sought the sanity tests partly because of "the bizarre nature of the offense" and partly because of "certain information from federal officials about Mrs. Moore, " which he declined to specify.

Mrs. Moore has been linked to several leftist groups, but also has been identified by the FBI as a paid informer who worked with the bureau on a regular basis until last June.

The Associated Press has learned that Mrs. Moore also was providing information to local police and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tax and Firearms as late as the day before the assassination attempt. The information was believed to have been in connection with a gun trafficking probe.

Mrs. Moore reportedly told agents who questioned her after the incident that she had earlier asked authorities to arrest her before she began to "test the system."

Hewitt said the transfer to San Diego was delayed until Friday to give him time to consider an appeal and to give Mrs. Moore time to make arrangements for her son, Frederick Aalberg, 9, currently in the Youth Guidance Center.

"She's a mother and she naturally is concerned about her child," Hewitt said.

Late Tuesday, it was learned that Mrs. Moore bought the gun she used in the assassination attempt — and another one that had been confiscated by police Sunday — from Mark Fernwood, a Danville, Calif., gun collector.

In another development Tuesday, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. signed bills imposing mandatory prison sentences for using guns in the commission of serious crimes and requiring a 15-day waiting period before gun purchasers can receive the weapons.

Extortion plot said caused by television

DYERSBURG, Tenn. (AP) — A juvenile officer blames too much crime on television for an attempted $1 million extortion plot planned by a group of Dyersburg boys ranging in age from 10 to 14.

The youngsters have been charged with threatening to blow up a Sears Roebuck and Co. store in an attempt to extort $1 million in cash and about $100,000 in guns, trucks and farm equipment.

The nine have been released in the custody of their parents pending a juvenile court hearing. Their names were not released.

"It's not that we felt they could have pulled it off," Juvenile Officer Joey McDowell said Tuesday. "It's that 12-year-olds could think of it. It's television and nothing else."

McDowell said officers didn't know they were dealing with juveniles until the mother of one of the boys identified her son's handwriting on the extortion note.

McDowell said the plot was well-planned except for a miscalculation in the amount of postage on the two-pound extortion note and other details that did not become apparent until the nine were in custody.

Sheriff's deputies were called into the case Monday when Sears store officials received a parcel containing a handwritten note and more than 100 pages torn from the Sears' catalog.

The note threatened that the store would be blown up if the money and merchandise marked on the catalog pages were not delivered in three Peterbilt trucks. The note demanded rifles, ammunition, farm equipment and citizens band radios.

McDowell said the type of truck was specified because one of the boys was familiar with the vehicle. He said other members of the group were chosen by the 12-year-old leader for particular skills or knowledge.

Investigators took the package to the postoffice, and postal officials were able to trace its origin. Despite the package's weight, the boys used only a 10-cent stamp when it was placed in the mailbox at the home of one of the plotters for the mailman to pick up.

"Everybody down at the postoffice remembered the package," he said. "It was sort of a joke because the postman who picked it up got chewed out for picking it up with so much postage due."

Deputies went to the house where the package had been mailed.

McDowell said the mother of one of the boys recognized the handwriting. The other members of the group were quickly identified and picked up, he said.

McDowell said the boys apparently had planned to purchase a large farm in northeast Arkansas and operate it with the equipment they hoped to extort from Sears.

Hurricane's rain washes eastern U.S.

By The Associated Press

Heavy rains and the remnants of Hurricane Eloise continue to plague the eastern part of the country.

Moisture associated with the remnants of the storm has produced locally heavy rain for large areas in the path of the storm, which is expected to move northeast into Pennsylvania today.

As a result, flash flood watches remain in effect from the lower Ohio Valley and southern Appalachians northward into the Middle Atlantic states.

Eloise drenched Georgia with heavy rain and buffeted the state with winds up to 60 miles an hour, but apparently caused no major damage and few injuries.

However, up to 100,000 Georgians were without electricity Tuesday night and a Georgia Power Co. spokesman said, "We're going to have a lot of people without power in the morning."

Showers and thunderstorms were widespread from the lower Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley and in the Atlantic Coast states.

Except for southern Florida, cloudy skies have covered the nation from the Mississippi River eastward. Generally clear skies covered the western two thirds of the country although some cloudiness continues over the coast of Washington.

Cool temperatures cover a large portion of the country with readings in the 40s and 50s across most of the northern two-thirds of the nation. Warm temperatures are confined to the south Atlantic coast, California and the desert southwest.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. (edt) ranged from 33 at Hibbing, Minn. to 85 at Yuma, Ariz.

Scot Lad takes store chain assets

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Scot Lad Foods Inc. of Lansing, Ill., has told a Summit County court that it took $305,691 in cash and supplies when it closed Co-Op Enterprises of Akron's last four grocery stores.

Scot Lad had been operating the stores for the financially troubled firm in lieu of collecting what's listed as $1 million Co-Op owed the Illinois company.

Co-Op filed for financial reorganization recently under the Federal Bankruptcy Act, and the U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge appointed a receiver to undertake the reorganization.

Meanwhile, labor organizations that hold $100,000 of CoOp's preferred stock have been told they can consider the stock a loss. And the receiver has told the court that Co-Op's funeral home operation will be shut down.

On Monday, Scot Lad, a food wholesaler, reported the amount of its withdrawal of cash and merchandise to Summit County Judge Daniel B. Quillin in response to his order. Quillin sought the information in connection with a suit by Reiter Foods of Akron, which charged that Scot Lad and CoOp had defrauded Reiter Foods at the time the stores were closed.

Reiter contends Scot Lad doubled its orders of dairy products and then sold them below cost in order to obtain cash it then could withdraw from bank accounts as well as the cash registers.

Co-Op, founded by labor unions several decades ago but later converted to a stock company, listed debts of $3.4 million against assets of $300,000 when it filed bankruptcy action in federal court. A receiver already had been appointed by the county court in response to creditors' suits, and Reiter wants that receiver retained despite the appointment of a receiver by the federal court in an action that normally would supercede the state court's appointment.

Monday night, representatives of the 52 labor unions that hold Co-Op stock were told they could "kiss it goodbye." The unions were seeking a means to occasion investigation of the firm for possible criminal violations.

The federal receiver has said Co-Op's six optical stores' operation will be continued. The grocery stores were the last of the firm's original seven food centers. Co-Op also had operated a funeral home, and the federal receiver said recently that he had decided against trying to keep it going.

Trudeau meets Mrs. Thatcher

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, the leader of Britain's Conservative party, meets with Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau today as she ends a two-day visit to the Canadian capital.

Mrs. Thatcher goes on to Toronto for a speech before the Empire Club at Toronto after her visit with Trudeau. She and her husband and accompanying British officials depart for home on Thursday.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Thatcher met with Robert Stanfield, leader of the Canadian progessive Conservative Party and with Mitchell Sharp, president of the Privy Council.

Big city mayors concerned over municipal bonds outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a spillover from New York's financial crisis, leading big city mayors are seeking congressional approval for more aid or federal guarantees to pay off municipal bonds if the cities default.

The Ford administration has opposed any federal bailout of financially strapped New York City or any other city.

The mayors' position is to be given today to the congressional Joint Economic Committee chaired by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and then at a meeting with President Ford. Among the mayors scheduled before the congressional panel are Abraham Beame of New York, Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Moon Landrieu of New Orleans and Coleman Young of Detroit.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon also is to testify.

A spokesman for the mayors said they want to ask Ford if he intends to let New York City default on its loans and go into bankruptcy, as some economic experts predict it will do when $2.3 billion in emergency state aid runs out in three months.

The spokesman said the mayors will recommend to Congress and Ford that the federal government must come to the aid of the cities and will suggest either grants or a form of insurance to protect city bonds.

In one of Ford's recent statements on the possibility of helping New York City, the President claimed the city had been run fiscally irresponsibly for 10 or 12 years and he said: "I see no role for the federal government, no legal role for the President to take under the circumstances."

Since New York's financial crisis emerged earler this year, other big-city mayors have warned that the fate of their cities is linked to that of New York's. They have said that if New York defaults, confidence in their cities' bonds will be undermined and they will have to pay higher interest rates to investors in order to borrow money. They say this will require cuts in services or increases in taxes.

ones which I believed represented the views of the intelligence community," Huston said.

According to Huston, the heads of the various intelligence agencies, including then-CIA director Richard M. Helms, told him "you give us these tools and we will solve the problem" of domestic violence.

Only Hoover suggested that the methods were unconstitutional or illegal, Huston said.

The plan was approved by President Richard M. Nixon in July 1970, but was withdrawn five days later at Hoover's insistence. However, Church charged that "the Huston plan itself was only an episode in the lawlessness which preceeded and followed its brief existence."

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded a broad gain today, encouraged by expectations of no more than a moderate price increase by oil exporting nations.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 7.51 at 827.36, and advancing issues outpaced declines by about a 41 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Signs from the opening session of an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Vienna were that the oil nations would post only a 10 per cent price increase, or possibly less, when the current freeze on prices expires at the end of the month.

Among oil issues, Gulf, the Big Board volume leader, gained ⅜ to 21⅞; Exxon was up 1⅛ at 92⅝, and Standard Oil of Indiana rose ¾ to 48½.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up .54 to 84.68.

Solons may probe Secret Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a result of the two assassination attempts against President Ford, Congress is pushing its first investigation of the Secret Service and its performance in protecting presidents.

Alarmed that a woman who told police last weekend she might "test the system" could be allowed within 40 feet of Ford on a San Francisco street, a Senate panel is planning to question the director of the Secret Service next week to determine if changes should be made in the agency's protection program.

The congressional probe comes as the Secret Service itself is drawing up new protective procedures. Presidential Counsel Philip Buchen said "at least partial recommendations" for revamping presidential protection will be submitted to Ford before his next trip from Washington. The President is scheduled to visit Chicago next Tuesday.

San Francisco police said Tuesday that they had warned the Secret Service about Sara Jane Moore after she was charged with illegal possession of a gun and after she said she might "test the system."

They said they asked Secret Service if they wanted the woman held but were told it wouldn't be necessary. Secret Service agents then interviewed Mrs. Moore and decided not to place her under surveillance. The next day, she allegedly shot at Ford.

Environmental kooks

The arrest of Lynette Fromme for pointing a .45 at President Ford has brought to light the Manson "family's" Johnny-come-lately show of concern with preserving the environment. Witness the courtroom babbling of the accused about saving the redwoods; witness her roommate's claim that numerous businessmen considered suspect for their supposed ecological backwardness are in line for execution when the time comes.

This misguided fanaticism is a handicap for genuine environmentalists. The point is well made in National Wildlife magazine by its executive editor, Jim Doherty: "At a time when the environmental movement has become a convenient scapegoat for too many of the nation's ills, the last thing it needed was an assassination attempt on the President by a self-styled ecology freak. Subsequent revelations in the press about the Manson gang's seemingly deranged environmental concerns have only made matters worse."

There are selfish interests in this country which would welcome anything that throws the environmental movement into disarray. These are the groups that work hard to depict ecological concerns as threatening to hamstring the nation in its search for energy to meet rising needs. They would like nothing better than to have Americans dismiss environmentalists as kooks like the Manson zealots.

The fact is that there are a great many series, well informed, well motivated people in the environmentalists' camp - people who have soberly dedicated themselves to helping preserve our natural heritage. The "kooks," if one gets right down to it, are those who in effect advocate continuing environmental degradation and the profligate waste of resources.

THESE DAYS.... By John Chamberlain

Pennsylvania moves to meet crisis

Long ago, the State of Pennsylvania passed strip-mine reclamation legislation that is tougher than the Federal bill that was recently vetoed by President Ford. The ability of a single state to meet its ecological needs is catching: the resurfacing of old strip-mined land in the U.S. as a whole is now proceeding at a faster clip than the development of new open-cut coal acreage. The moral is that people don't have to wait upon the creation of new bureaucracies in Washington to solve their problems.

Washington, indeed, creates 10 new crises for every one that it settles. It has caused the natural gas shortage by its price meddling, with the result that some industries that have been using gas will have to close down this coming winter. The gas shortage puts a strain on other energy sources, notably electricity. So the Edison Electric Institute is now predicing that the nation will fall short of its required electrical energy supply by some 115 quadrillion BTUs within the next quarter of a century.

How is a community to react to such a prophecy? Thinking ahead for itself as it did in the matter of strip-mine reclamation, Pennsylvania has come up with the idea of the "energy park." Four Pennsylvania utilities — Philadelphia Electric, Metropolitan Edison of Reading, Pennsylvania Electric of Johnstown, and Pennsylvania Power and Light of Allentown — are now busy exploring 10 possible sites in their state where power plants might be clustered in relatively small geographical areas, with advantages in efficiency and pollution control that would help speed the investment process in a way calculated to overcome the gloomy fears of those who see "zero growth" as our national fate.

Ten years ago, the lead time for the construction of a new power plant was five years from the start of planning to operation. Now it takes seven to eight years for a coal-fired plant, and 10 years for a nuclear plant. Much of the time is wasted in waiting for the necessary environmental impact statement that must be filed and accepted before ground can be broken on a project. But if the utilities of any given state or region were to adopt the Energy Park concept, setting aside acreage in remote rural regions for the future siting of coal-fired and nuclear plants, the delays attendant upon licensing and the filing of impact statements could be eradicated. A single impact statement would, other things being equal, be good for all future construction on a given Energy Park acreage. And the 52 separate Federal and state licenses that must be obtained by the builders of a fossil-fuel plant could be issued once and for all.

John H. Seager, the project manager of the Pennsylvania Energy Park Development Group, doesn't claim that energy parks will necessarily create more electricity for the far future, but he does think they might save five years in bringing new generating plants on stream. And the ecological benefits in clustering energy-producing facilities in parks could be immense. The land requirements for water supplies, support facilities and the actual plant acreage would be far less than would be needed for an equal number of power plants at widely separated single sites. Energy-intensive industries such as aluminum would naturally cluster around an Energy Park in a new adaptation of the Industriai Park idea. Waste heat and processed steam might be utilized by other dependent industries. And agricultural enterprises might also make use of low-grade heat to grow year-round crops.

The Energy Park idea has sparked an interest not only throughout Pennsylvania, where the Governor's Energy Council has been holding "public input meetings" in each of the possible 10 site regions, but among emissaries from other states who have been coming to Harrisburg for information. An energy-starved people isn't going to put up with the negations imposed by the Naderites and the other pseudo-environmentalists forever. The encouraging thing about the U.S. system is that 50 states are still free to experiment, and to generate ideas that would never get off the ground in Washington. We may still surmount our energy crisis if the Federal bureaucrats can only be kept at bay.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, SPETEMBER 25

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
You can make headway in most matters, but some concessions may be obligatory. Do not take on new ventures without thorough investigation. This is no day for acting blindly.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
A conservative and prudent attitude will keep you from going overboard through misguided enthusiasm — a tendency now.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
As with many others, you will get into difficulty if you speak or act in haste. Stick to high principles, but avoid dissension, antagonism.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Iron out kinks in your plans and tactics. You should be able to interpret and handle situations ably now. In aiming for goals, however, don't overreach.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
A good period for long-range thinking and plans. Review carefully before launching unfamiliar ventures, but do not hesitate to try for a new achievement.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
An excellent day for considering a new business commitment, but keep future objectives in mind. Don't base decisions in the light of immediate gain.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
You could be wavering, indefinite. It will be that type of day — calling for strictness with self and others who require it. Design a pattern you can follow.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Once you are sure that your ideas have good potentialities, lose no time in trying to bring them to realization. Good Mars influences should help you.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
You may face some unexpected situations, some unforeseen changes. Accept all in your inherently gracious manner. They could turn out surprisingly well.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Everyone likes the accolades and few relish the critique, but the latter is often far more beneficial — when taken with the right attitude. Expect a "going-over" now: You will learn a lot.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Day may be less stimulating than you wish, but you can make it more so by your attitude, enthusiasm and willingness to cooperate with the best offered.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
This day calls for calmness and good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and do not let yourself be pushed into undesirable "corners."

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a keen and analytical mind; are a zealous scholar and extremely artisitic in your leanings. You apply your learning astutely and would make an excellent teacher or writer. You have many other careers open to you, however, but prefer either creative or intellectual pursuits. Your inherent love of beauty makes you an outstanding candidate in the fields of painting and sculpture, illustrating, designing and interior decorating. In other professions, choose from the law, medicine or statesmanship.

Rhodes continues lottery push

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state legislature has ignored an administration bill to revamp the Ohio Lottery Commission, but the rebuff has not lessened Gov. James A. Rhodes' resolve to win a greater voice in the Cleveland-based operation.

"Obviously, we can't just abdicate and walk away," Chan Cochran, the governor's administrative aide said after legislative leaders took no action on the bill during their three-day special session. "All they've done is delay the inevitable."

The bill, which would place all lottery employes under civil service and increase the authority of the director, a Rhodes appointee, is almost certain to lie dormant, at least for the rest of this year.

Meanwhile, there are indications that the politically charged situation is simmering down for the time being.

Deputy Director James Dickerson has resigned to campaign full time for mayor in the Sept. 30 Cleveland primary.

Dickerson was viewed by the Rhodes administration as the personification of the heavy political coloring of the commission. The return of Dickerson, who had been on a leave of absence, would have been "a setback," Cochran said.

The five commissioners, all appointed by former Gov. John J. Gilligan, operate almost independently of the administration whose lottery director does not have the authority to hire and fire lower echelon employes.

In recent months, the lottery operation has been hit with charges of mismanagement.

At the most recent meeting, commissioners asked acting director Gerald J. Patronite to provide further information concering the allegations for the Oct. 23 meeting.

Patronite, a 27-year-old Cleveland attorney with little political experience, has apparently won Rhodes' favor and is no longer viewed as an interim appointee. "He is lending some stability to the operation," Cochran says.

Two of the governor's previous choices resigned earlier this year, claiming they were powerless to deal with the Democratic-dominated commission.

Patronite, the state auditor and the Cuyahoga County prosecutor are investigating charges of political activity at the commission for Dickerson's candidacy and a report that a hotel liquor bill was paid with lottery funds.

In the meantime, the governor's Cost Control Council has put forth a proposal for restructuring the lottery panel that differs from Rhodes' bill.

The so-called "Little Hoover Commission" would make the director a working member of the commission to increase his effectiveness in managing lottery operations, "particularly personnel."

"It was considerably different as to detail," Cochran said of the council recommendation, "but not at all as to thrust."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Alaska not a happy man-hunting ground

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Looking in St. Paul," who wanted to know where she and a friend could find eligible men.

PLEASE, don't steer them to Alaska. True, there are many men, up here, but they are either itinerant military, or summer job seekers who are living off welfare, or itinerant workers who come here to make a fast buck and take it back to their families.

The number of unemployed men in Alaska is staggering.

Abby, please give your readers the following message: If you don't have a job and a place to live in Alaska, don't come.

The company I worked for transferred me to Alaska 18 years ago. I've remained because I like it, but the changes that have taken place here because of the oil boom are disheartening.

Crime is rampant because so many are jobless. The schools are crowded, and too few people care about the environment.

We Alaskans welcome people to our state who have something to offer and will be a good citizen. But we don't want people who bleed the land, destroy our wildlife, rip off our neighbors and make money here to spend elsewhere.

ALASKAN

DEAR ALASKAN: All right, that settles it. I'll amend my advice to women preparing to go on a man-hunt. Forget Alaska!

DEAR ABBY: In the four years I have lived in Florida, I have seen only one person wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key who has actually earned it himself. However, on other occasions, I have seen women wearing Phi Betta Kappa keys on charm braclets.

On inquiry, I learned that the keys belonged to their husbands. The women did not seem the slightest bit embarrassed to be wearing a symbol of academic achievement that they themselves did not earn.

Now that Phi Beta Kappa is approaching its 200th birthday, I wish you would state your opinion of this practice.

NOT CLEAR IN CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR NOT: Wearing ANY unearned symbol of achievement is dishonest, whether it's a Phi Beta Kappa key, a purple heart or a bronze star.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for those waitresses who don't seem to know which side their bread is buttered on.

I have never seen it fail. Every time my husband and I sit down to order in a restaurant, the waitress looks only at my husband and asks him what he wants. She ignores me completely.

He is the only one who is asked if he wants more coffee.

I know that is where the tip comes from, but if the waitress was smart, she would pay a little attention to the woman, because she's usually the one who decides where they dine.

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: Don't blame the waitress for turning to the gentleman for the order. It's customary for him to order for both the lady and himself. However, she should ask the lady (first) if she wants more coffee.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 1975. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1955, President Dwight Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while on vacation in Denver.

On this date—

In 1780, during the Revolutionary War, Benedict Arnold escaped to a British ship after attempting to betray the West Point fortifications on the Hudson River.

In 1789, the U.S. Supreme Court was being formed, and President George Washington named John Jay of New York as the first Chief Justice.

In 1869, there was panic on Wall Street after an attempt by financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk to corner the gold market.

In 1934, Babe Ruth made his farewell appearance as a regular player with the New York Yankees.

In 1941, in World War Two, Allied governments pledged adherence to the Atlantic Charter.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear tests.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union renewed its call for a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Communist Warsaw Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: Jordan's King Hussein appeared to be gaining the upper hand in fighting with Palestinian guerrilla forces in northern Jordan.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives voted to suspend military aid to Turkey until substantial progress was made toward a settlement on Cyprus.

Today's birthdays: Former astronaut John Young is 45 years old. Entertainer and composer Anthony Newley is 44.

Thought for today: Most people put off until tomorrow that which they should have done yesterday — Ed Howe, American writer, 1853-1937.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Daytime TV is naught but fastpaced game shows and plodding soap operas, right? Well, on Thursday, NBC is trying what Monty Python might call something completely different.

It is pre-empting two soap operas for a costly, 90-minute exercise ambiguously entitled, "Barbara Walters Visits the Royal Lovers." The lovers turn out to be married, with no hint of scandal about them.

Only two royal couples are dealt with, one in France, the other in Denmark, although lesser aristocrats appear as supporting players.

The show, described as an experiment in daytime TV by producer Lucy Jarvis, is a well-photographed combination of the this-is-me-at-the-palace and the it's-simply-divine schools of journalism.

It isn't meant to be weighty, as one might suspect from Miss Walters' inquiries. They range from asking the pretender to the throne of France if married Frenchmen keep mistresses to this corker to the Queen of Denmark: "Is it hard to be a queen?"

Billed as a look at "the glamorous world of European royalty," it's also a look at how Miss Walters hobknobs in that world, apparently to inspire vicarious thrills for the housewife in Peoria.

In the first segment on French would-be royalty and all that, Miss Walters takes us to a joint called Maxim's in Paris to watch her rub elbows with her aristocratic hosts and bump into Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to the late President Kennedy.

After she notes that he has strong opinions about modern royalty, she is seen traveling with Salinger in a car the next day.

She explains in narration that "the next morning I had an appointment at Versailles and Pierre gave me a lift." En route, he reveals that while aristocrats regard themselves as important, the average Frenchman gives not hoot one about their lives.

That should have been ample warning. But she presses on to Versaille, gapes a bit, chats a bit, then goes to a horse race and is told by a giggling Indian prince he needs a rich wife.

Then comes an aristocratic dinner, followed by a quick trip to fashion designer Yves St. Laurent, who says he is designing below the knee this year and whips up a quick evening dress for her.

And on it goes, with Miss Walters mightily impressed at times, pretentious at other moments and occasionally attempting to inject a little humor to show that she's just plain folks.

The only segment that really is interesting is her visit with the young Queen of Denmark, a very warm, natural and unassuming lady.

Households seek flood assistance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A total of 1,640 households in three flood-stricken Ohio counties have applied for state and federal disaster assistance, the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration reported Tuesday.

Applications will be taken again today at field offices in Cuyahoga, Belmont and Jefferson counties. Disaster loans and the state's cash grants were sought by most of those going to disaster assistance centers in Cleveland and Bellaire, Federal Coordinator Robert E. Connor said.

Oldsmobile 1976.

An Olds for everybody. And good mileage in every size.

Take a look at the beautiful new 1976 Oldsmobiles in your dealer showroom. They're impressive.

Then take a look at the 1976 EPA Mileage Guide test figures for Oldsmobile. They're impressive, too.

They show that good gas mileage runs in our family. Remember these mileage figures are estimates. Naturally the actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and available equipment.

From sporty Starfire supercoupes to full-size, front-wheel drive Toronados, there's good gas mileage in every size Olds.

That's quite a feat considering the array of sizes and models that Olds is offering this year. With this kind of selection, there's bound to be an Olds to fit your lifestyle and pocketbook. And every Olds, whether small, mid-size or full-size is built to be right for the times.

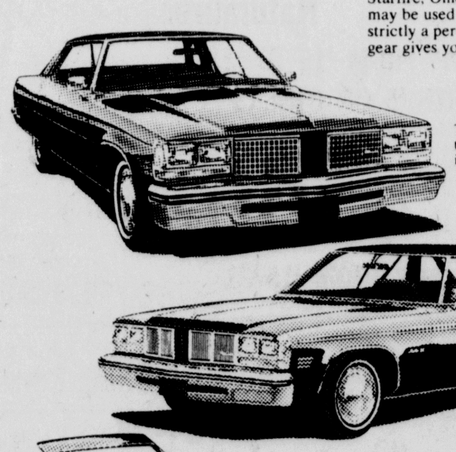

This year Oldsmobile is offering an available five-speed overdrive transmission on Starfire, Omega and Cutlass models. (You may be used to thinking of five-speed as strictly a performance feature, but the fifth gear gives you overdrive efficiency.)

We invite you to make a total comparison. Good gas mileage, traditional Oldsmobile engineering, construction, dependability and solid comfort. You'll find each Olds packed with value because it's built with the care and attention to detail that's a tradition at Oldsmobile. Can we build one for you?

THE 98 REGENCY. Proof that the world of luxury doesn't have to ignore a concern for gas economy.

DELTA 88 ROYALE. All the solid dependability of a family-sized Olds. Yet the 88 gets good gas mileage for a car of its size.

STARFIRE. Who says you can't get good gas mileage in a sporty car? Check out Starfire, Starfire SX and the available Starfire GT option—Oldsmobile's supercoupes.

CUTLASS S. Restyled front end and sides. The new look is bolder, sportier. All this . . . and surprising gas economy, too.

CUTLASS SUPREME BROUGHAM. The first mid-sized car to have an interior inspired by the famous 98 Regency. The gas mileage is pretty inspiring too.

OMEGA BROUGHAM. Quite possibly the most luxurious compact ever built. But its impressive gas mileage reminds you it's an economy car, too.

Altitude of bees proves problem

BRUNSWICH, Ohio (AP) — The city council here has decided against trying to force bees to fly above a certain altitude.

The matter arose after a Brunswich couple complained that bees from a neighbor's hives had entered the couple's basement repeatedly during the summer.

The complaint led to a proposed ordinance that required hives within 200 feet of a residence must be screened or mounted 10 feet above the ground so the bees must fly at least that high to enter their homes.

The council voted 5 to 2 to reject the measure Monday night, then returned it to the safety committee "for further study."

'Outstanding women educators' MW Committee meeting topic

Outstanding Martha Washington Committee Members on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, and guests enjoyed the hospitality of their gracious hostess Mrs. Willard Bitzer for their September meeting.

Mrs. Byron Hinton, chairman, welcomed Mrs. Gary Hidy and Mrs. Marvin Roszmann as new members and guests Miss Helen Hutson and Mrs. Fay J. Mayo and members. Mrs. Hinton led in the giving of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. B.M. Slagle, regent of Washington C.H. Chapter, DAR, made the announcement that the Nathaniel Massie Chapter, DAR, of Chillicothe, will be hosts to the Washington C.H. Chapter at 12:30 luncheon Oct. 1, at the Chillicothe Country Club- reservations to be made with Mrs. B.M. Slagle before Friday. Also announced was the Washington Chapter DAR luncheon Oct. 6th at White Oak Grove Church, when Mrs. Norman DeMent will be guest speaker on "How Are We Prepared for the 200th Anniversary of Our Country". Music will be by "The Cecilian Double Trio".

Mrs. Bitzer, second vice regent of Washington C.H. DAR Chapter, introduced guest speaker, Mrs. Fay J. Mayo, who as a former teacher with her love of learning, and preserving the past, has given enrichment to the education of all ages.

Mrs. Mayo reported on her research project "Contributions of Outstanding Women Educators of Washington C.H. and Fayette County". She showed pictures of the teachers who taught in the community in the 1800's. In future reports, teachers who taught after 1900 will be featured. Families of the teachers had given data from old record and family histories."

Mrs. Mayo opened with the reading of "Early Teacher's School Days" with modern words writen by Mrs. Joan Rhoads. She told the group the former name of Sunnyside School-was Bull's Tail School. The first school was built in Fayette County in 1813 in New Martinsburg.

Mrs. Mayo prefaced her program by reporting some interesting facts concerning the first Ohio school teacher, Bathsheba Rouse (1769-1843), descendant of Mayflower families, who came from Massachusetts to Marietta in 1788. This courageous woman is given credit of planting the first milestone in Ohio's educational system. She also mentioned her own great-grandmother as a pioneer teacher who taught at Rome, Ohio from 1808-1810.

Three pioneer teachers who spent their entire lives in Washington C.H. schools were especially honored. Each taught more than 45 years with a desire to mold lives and shape future citizens rather than have homes of their own.

The late Amy Conn, who taught 49 years in the Washington C.H. schools, received her first orchid on her 84th birthday from a former student who remembered her guidance. The year she retired the students wrote a tribute to her which appeared in the Sunburst, the high school annual. In part, it said: "We are grateful that you have taught us more than just facts to be gleaned from books, and that you have instilled in us the real values of life."

In The Record-Herald in March 1945, an editorial said of Miss Gertrude Channel: "The people knew her to be a strong woman of high ideals, culture and refinement who had the happy faculty of being a mother as much as a teacher, to so many of her pupils. She was worthy of all the fine things that so many people have said about her."

Miss Clara Thurston's death called forth many sincere tributes from countless friends who knew of her fine record as a teacher. Miss Thurston taught 46 years in Washington C.H. grades and Washington High School.

Another early educator-Miss Carolyn Franes Wherritt, born in 1846, in Washington C.H. taught high school subjects on the third floor of the Old Central building before the first high school was built here in 1883. Old Central was built in 1856. The Wendel family, prominent pioneers in Fayette County and Carolyn Franes Wherrit's mother's parents gave five or six acres on North Street for school purposes."

Mrs. Haidee Van Winkle Coffman, one of the most admirable teachers in the history of Washington High School, was a native of Hillsboro. She graduated from college in 1890 and in 1891 came to Washington C.H. and became an instructor in Washington High School. She married Grant Coffman of the Coffman Lumber Company. She died in 1944, after guiding the thoughts of hundreds of students through history and art which she glamorized by her information she secured from her many European trips. The paintings and sculpture which enhance the walls of Washington High School were secured under her supervision.

The Sunburst, the WHS annual, had this to say when she retired from teaching in 1935: "The faculty and student body of WHS will sustain a great loss when Mrs. Coffman retires from the active teaching force of this high school. Mrs. Coffman leaves many priceless reminders of all she had done for the enrichment of the lives of those students who have felt the power of her personality."

Through her influence and under her leadership the annual art exhibits have cultivated a love for good pictures and furnished the means of filling the corridors and rooms with copies of the great masters in painting and sculpture that are the pride and joy of pupils in school and will be a treasured memory to carry through life. In her classroom she made the dead past live again, history under her presentation became a pageant of living figures moving through the ages, rich with the spoils of time - a continuous panorama of human figures. Fortunate is the student who has come under the influence of such a teacher."

During the Bicentennial celebration would be a perfect time to bring a program to the students of Fayette County and city schools.

'An Apple for the Teacher' was presented to Mrs. Mayo with a gift by Mrs. Bitzer. The excellent program was enjoyed by all.

The formal dining room of the spacious Bitzer home was the center of the serving of delicious refreshments. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Thomas Hancock, Mrs. Robert Haigler and Mrs. Gary Hidy.

Speaking up for farm women

CHICAGO (AP) — One of the nation's leading rural magazines says equal rights for farm women are long overdue.

Jim Thomson, editor of Prairie Farmer, says in an editorial: "Women are on the warpath, and we can't say we blame them. Farm women especially have reason to complain. One told us recently that even though she had worked with her husband through 30 years of married life, on his death the government said none of the farm belonged to her."

Thomson feels the role of the farm woman has been changing subtly for many years. A recent Prairie Farmer poll shows that 25 per cent of farm women in the Midwest are taking jobs in town and-or furthering their education.

"The farm woman is no longer restructed to an auxiliary position," says Thomson. "In some cases she never was. But the farm woman generally was limited in what she could do and in what was expected of her. She had minimal education in a society with limited education.

"Women are demanding the recognition they rightfully deserve as equal partners in the farm operation vis-a-vis Social Security, taxation and government regulations," says Thomson.

Miss Wilson, Mr. Dill wed in Jeff Methodist Church

An impressive candlelight service in the Jeffersonville Methodist Church, Sunday evening September 21, solemnized the exchange of marriage vows by Miss Mary Katherine Wilson and David William Dill. The Rev. Albert R. Briggs officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar enhanced by two seven-branch candelabras arranged with foliage and satin bows. Before them were placed two fan shaped vases of chrysanthemums of yellow, white, bronze, and copper, flanked by large lacy palms. Each window in the sanctuary held three tapers, and the pews were marked with aisle hurricane candles, all complimented with green foliage and satin bows.

Mrs. Albert R. Briggs, organist, presented a half hour of enjoyable selections, the traditional Wedding March and Recessional.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ford Wilson, Ohio Rt. 729, Milledgeville, and Mr. Maynard A. Wilson of Washington C.H., and Mr. Dill's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Morlane Dill of Brookville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mark David Wilson. Her floor-length gown of candlelight chiffon featured a round neckline, with handmade Brussels lace forming a bib and cap sleeves. A soft sash encircled the waist and two crushed chiffon roses were the only adornment on the gown. Brussels lace formed the hemline of the gown ending in a circular train. Her veil of candlelight illusion featured both a floor-length veil and an elbow length veil each trimmed with delicate lace. Over-the-elbow champagne kid gloves completed the ensemble. The bridal bouquet was of champagne Fuji mums, stephanotis, baby's breath, and English Ivy with long streamers of champagne satin. The bride's only jewelry was a delicate ivory rose of muted salmon color on a fragile gold chain and matching earrings, worn by her maternal grandmother on her wedding day in 1901.

Mrs. David Smith of Milledgeville, a cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Betsy Hartman of Washington C.H. and Miss Rhonda Hendricks of Octa. Their identically styled gowns of Quiana knit were fashioned with scoop necklines, empire waists with tiny rolled self sashes, bell sleeves with tight cuffs, and softly draped floor-length A-lined skirts. The gowns were Earth colors, Mrs. Smith's an Apricot Ice; Miss Hartman in Sable Brown; and Miss Hendricks in Chrysanthemum Copper. Each carried a small natural tone basket of mums and wore diminutive headpieces of mums, combing the colors of their gowns. Pearl drop necklaces and isotone gloves, gifts of the bride, completed their costumes.

Mrs. Wilson chose a mint green chiffon two-piece floor-length gown for her daughter's wedding. The bodice was of permenantly pleated chiffon, as was the skirt, with long softly draped sleeves and a V-neckline. A fabric gardenia of the same color adorned the waistline. She combined silver accessories and had two Eucharis Lilies pinned on her purse.

The groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of Azalea pink polyester. It was fashioned with a jewelry neckline, empire waist, with openwork ribbon knit yoke. Her hip length jacket was of the same ribbon knit. She wore gold accessories and also had two Eucharis lillies pinned on her purse.

Marine Lance Corporal David Skidmore, of Brookville, served as the best man. Seating the guests were Mark Hiser, the bride's cousin, Leon Denlinger of Brookville, and Alan Ewen of Tiffin. Miss Marcia Market presided at the guest book.

The reception immediately following the service carried the same theme of Earth colors. The bride's table was centered with a four tier candlelight and white, cake, beautifully decorated with scrolls and roses, and topped with a silver cross and entwined wedding bands. Two large hurricane tapers lighted the table and the net ocercloth was formed in large scallops edged with green foliage swags centered with nosegays of mums. Hostesses serving punch and cake to the guests were Mrs. Frank J. Weade, Mrs. Omar A. Schwart, Mrs. Charles T. Hiser, and Miss Markel.

For traveling, the bride changed into a light weight wool slack suit of tiny check heather green and brown, with which she combined a chocolate brown blouse and brandy brown accessories. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage styled from the same flowers as her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Dill a 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, is employed at the J&J restaurant in Washington C.H. She hopes to enter LPN training at Fayette Memorial Hospital in September 1976. Mr. Dill graduated in 1973 from Brookville High School and the International School of Broadcasting, and is a sales representative for WCHO Radio Station in Washington C.H.

Following a honeymoon in Canada, the young couple will be at home to friends on Kohler Drive, Washington C.H.

Hooded for fall

LITTLE SIS — A merry mix of dots and flowers is as fine for a tot as for anybody else. Here the cotton corduroy is made into a hooded pants suit tied with a bow at the elasticized waistband. (Good Lad, of Cone Mills corduroy.)

So she's casting aside the traditional lace and pearl confections that Grandma wore for natural headpieces plucked fresh from the garden. Instead of yards of tulle or long lacey mantillas, she opts for single daisies or tiny rosebuds scattered throughout her long tresses.

Man turns 100 as prison inmate

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Weber, with a boyish twinkle in his eye and a well-groomed handlebar mustache that belie his years, observed his 100th birthday today in the Correctional Medical Center at the old Ohio Penitentiary.

"If I had known I was going to live so long I would have taken better care of myself," quipped Weber, Ohio's oldest prison inmate.

Weber has been in the Ohio prisons system for the past 49 years. He's eligible for parole now, but has no place to go.

Weber spends most of this time in bed or confined to a wheel chair. When he's in a good mood, he quips with the nurses, guards and inmates.

And he's a master of the four-letter vocabulary that breaks prison monotony.

"That's a damn lie," he said, when told a newspaper quoted him as saying he wanted a "bottle of schnapps and an 18-year-old girl" for his birthday.

But when another inmate questioned him about the girl, Weber vowed that any who came around wouldn't be disappointed. "I could handle it," he snapped.

Weber, a native of Hungary, was committed to the penitentiary in 1926 when he was 51. He was convicted of first-degree murder in the death of his 18-month-old daughter.

According to trial records, he tried to shoot his wife but the bullet hit the child she held in her arms. Prison officials say he has outlived all known relatives.

Medical center Supt. S. M. Patterson, who was only a year old when Weber was admitted, said records show he had been turned down for parole eight times although he was always a model prisoner. "That wasn't unusual in the old days to get rejected for that type of an offense," Patterson said. A jury recommendation for mercy saved Weber from the electric chair.

Former Gov. John J. Gilligan commuted the conviction to second-degree in 1972, making Weber eligible for parole. But he had no place to go and doctors suggested he remain in the hospital facility.

"They were hesitant about letting him go to a nursing home because of the care he gets here," said Patterson. "He's everybody's pet. When he feels bad, the nurses and everybody feels bad."

Weber's mind wanders from time to time, but when he's in a good mood the ward rings with his Hungarian songs. And fellow inmates who tease him about his singing get the other side of his tongue—sometimes in Hungarian but often in plain prison English.

Nurse Mary Stagakes ducks when Weber cuts loose with an obscene volley at anybody needling him. But he's "Dad," "Johnny," or simply "J. W." to fellow inmates, nurses and guards.

"I guess I'll come in here some morning and they'll tell me he's gone," said Patterson. "It'll be a bad day for all of us."

Then Patterson brightened, recalling the 500 letters that had poured in wishing Weber well. His face broke into a wide grin when the disputed quote about the 18-year-old girl was mentioned.

"I got a call from an 18-year-old girl this morning volunteering," he said.

Weber was to get a cake and a party. Nobody told him about the girl.

New parking control officer joins force

By MARK THELLMANN

"As long as Ben Gay stays on the market I've got a chance at surviving this job," Myra Shaw of 2219 Rowe Ging Road, laughed as she talked about her new position with the Washington C.H. Police Department as a parking control officer.

Mrs. Shaw has been marching around Washington C.H. streets since Friday ticketing cars, acquiring blistered feet and pulling leg muscles and even though it's been only three days, she admits to liking the job alot.

"I love the outdoors and I've always enjoyed exercising and sports," the pretty 32-year-old redhead stated. "This job is the best of both worlds - I can have both at once."

Mrs. Shaw is a graduate of Greenfield McClain High School. She moved from Greenfield to live in the Fayette County area 16 years ago and is also a licensed beautician. She was schooled and certified in Columbus and has worked at the Antoinette and Connie's beauty shops in Washington C.H.

The federally-funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) created Mrs. Shaw's position with the police department, plus a number of other public service jobs in Washington C.H. and Fayette County. She found out about the job through parking control officer Barney Ellars and Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Tony Wilson.

Mrs. Shaw has three children, David, 11; Traci, 9 and Kristi, 6.

Mrs. Shaw replaces Goldie Dawes in the parking control officer position, according to Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott.

OPEC begins new meeting on oil prices

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The oil cartel began another price-setting conference today amid predictions of an increase in the basic price of crude oil ranging from about 5 to 15 per cent, or from 50 cents to about $1.50 a barrel.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was under pressure from its biggest producer, Saudi Arabia, to keep the increase down. Libya, Iraq and Algeria were urging a price boost of as much as 35 per cent. But Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, the second largest producer, has said he expects no more than a 15 per cent rise.

The present base price is $10.46 for a 42-gallon barrel of Saudi Arabian light crude. Previously, an increase of $1.50 meant a rise in the price of gasoline in the United States of about a cent a gallon because the United States imports only a third of the oil it uses, and there is a government price ceiling of $5.25 a barrel on domestic oil.

But prospective modification of the ceiling and the oil companies' secrecy about their pricing methods makes it impossible to predict future retail prices accurately.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said on his arrival Tuesday night that his government wanted extension of the ninemonth price freeze that expires Sept. 30.

"But since the majority of OPEC members won't go along with this, we will be prepared to accept a nominal increase," he said.

Yamani indicated "nominal" meant 50 cents a barrel, or just below 5 per cent. He said his government "might accept another small, nominal increase at a later date provided there is a long price freeze afterwards."

He indicated, however, that this stand hinges on U.S. willingness to enlarge the proposed international conference on oil to include all major raw materials exported by the Third World countries.

"If there is no dialogue, we would change our position," he said.

Officers named at Laurel Oaks

Officers for the coming school year have been installed by the Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO) Club at Laurel Oaks Career Development Campus, near Wilmington.

The new president of HERO is Bette Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rebe Hamilton of Washington C.H.

Miss Hamilton was the only Fayette County resident to be named as an officer.

Other officers are Joyce Luckey of Fayetteville, Sandy Hager of Clarksville, Christy Throckmorton of Hillsboro, Linda Burns of Leesburg, and Toni Hodson of Wilmington.

The club is associated with the Future Homemakers of America, and installation was conducted during an impressive candlelighting ceremony.

Variety of non-traffic cases heard

A variety of non-traffic cases were aired in Washington C.H. Municipal Court Tuesday afternoon before acting Judge Robert Simpson.

John J. Sutton, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to a check fraud charge lodged by Carter Lumber Co., and was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in the county jail.

Judge Simpson suspended $50 of the fine and the 10-day jail term provided Sutton reimburse the lumber company for the $85.99 bad check.

Joey E. Phillips, 29, of 219 Sycamore St., was fined $100 and costs after he pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct complaint filed by Washington C.H. police. Officers said Phillips was arrested late Saturday night after he became involved in an argument with his sister at the Paint-Delaware street intersection.

Judge Simpson suspended $35 of the fine.

A man involved in a fight at the Washington C.H. police station on N. Fayette Street was fined $30 and costs after he pleaded guilty. Police officers said Charles W. Donohoe, 36, Sabina, was arrested early Sunday after he chased a man into the police station and began hitting him.

Steven C. Stebelton, 19, of 1306 Nelson Place, was fined $35 and costs, after pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace by intoxication. He was arrested on a private warrant filed by James Hoover.

Last ice age evidence sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio State University scientists will search in the Andes of Argentina for evidence of the last ice age in the southern hemisphere.

Drs. John H. Mercer and Thomas A. Ager, research associates at OSU's Institute of Polar Studies, will join an Argentine geologist next month to examine glacial deposits on the east side of the Andes for evidence left by glaciers in the past 15,000 years.

The researchers will collect samples of peat and other vegetation remains in the deposits to obtain radiocarbon dates and fossil pollen.

Company bids for road work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The John G. Ruhlin Construction Co. is the apparent low bidder on a Department of Highways project to relocate the Wooster Ave. bridge in Akron over future innerbelt lanes.

Traffic Court

The following traffic cases were heard Tuesday by Acting Municipal Court Judge Robert Simpson.

Rebecca R. Donohoe, 26, of 726 Washington Ave., was found not guilty of a charge of reckless operation.

Fined:

Dane E. Richey, 26, Columbus, $25 and costs, reckless operation.

Harold H. Smith, 70, Rt. 5, $40 and costs, reckless operation.

Bond Forfeitures:

Deborah L. Sears, 18, Rt. 3, speed excessive for road conditions, $25.

Terry L. Kratzer, 22, Jeffersonville, failure to drive on the right half of the roadway, $25.

Carl E. Barnhart, 28, of 1301 Forest St., expired operator's license, $35; excessive noise, $35.

Deborah Rollins, 27, Hillsboro, permitting an unlicensed driver to drive, $35.

Elizabeth A. Taylor, 36, Piqua, speeding, $25.

Gun control given boost by incident?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Judiciary Committee Chairman Harry J. Lehman thinks the latest presidential assassination attempt could give impetus to gun control hearings he plans in Dayton Thursday.

Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, said Tuesday the latest threat to the life of President Ford was "one of those unfortunate incidents that causes any citizen to become alert to the need for gun control."

His committee, in the first of several hearings planned around the state, will hear testimony for and against gun controls at sessions in the Dayton Muncipal Building Thursday afternoon and evening. Local police and court officials have agreed to testify.

Lehman said the recent slaying in Dayton of a desegregation expert, planning busing for city schools, points up the need for control of handguns.

"If what I want had been law, and if he (the accused slayer) were having known mental problems, he never would have been allowed to have a gun," Lehman said.

The Judiciary Committee chairman was unsuccessful this year in getting any of several proposed bills out of the House Reference Committee.

Lehman said he has decided to take his case "to the people."

Engineering profession topic during Rotary Club's meeting

The engineering profession was discussed at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Don Conley, 6 Willis Court, a relatively new member of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, said the field of engineering has evolved from the old military engineers to civil and consulting engineers.

Conley, a partner in the Gales Helms and Associates, Inc., consulting engineering and surveying firm, 222 N. Oakland Ave., pointed out to fellow Rotary Club members that the military engineers such as the Romans were involved in the construction of the first roadways, bridges and aquaducts. Later they became involved in the construction of castles and fortresses.

Conley, a 1964 graduate of Ohio State University in Columbus with a degree in civil engineering, said the first civil engineers emerged in the late 1700s. Now, civil engineers are primarily involved in the development of large fixed structures.

The civil engineers plan and supervise the construction of airports, dams and city sewage treatment systems such as the multi-million dollar project being proposed for Washington C.H.

Conley, a licensed professional engineer, said consulting engineers are basically involved in providing technical or professional advice. The business which Conley is associated with serves as a consulting engineering and surveying firm for approximately 150 projects per year.

He pointed out that there are all types of specialists in the engineering fields, ranging from welding engineers to surveying engineers. He pointed out there are 16 different types of engineering degrees available to students at Ohio State University.

Conley, a former deputy Fayette County engineer who also serves as a technical advisor to the Washington C.H. City Planning Commission, said a consulting engineer offers seven basic types of services.

The services include a feasibility study to determine the scope of the proposed project; preliminary planning for the various stages of construction and financing; preparation of construction drawings; preparation of specifications; supervision of the bidding process to determine the most qualified firms; financial planning which includes submitting applications for federal or state assistance and estimating the cost of operation once the project has been completed, and serving as a resident project engineer to supervise actual construction.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams and the program was arranged by Howard Miller.

Visiting Rotarians were Wilson Moon of Greenfield, Robert Montenaro of Mount Sterling, and Dr. Walter Felson of Greenfield. Guests were Pete Hackett and Roger Thomas with Willis Geyer, Dr. James McCracken with Paul Crosby and Alan Yeoman with Williams. Student guests were Scott Gerber of Miami Trace High School and Tom Anderson of Washington Senior High School.

Would-be assassin from West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The woman accused of trying to kill President Ford was born in a log house and grew up to be a high school actress and musician.

Now a middle-aged divorce with a 9-year-old son and other grown children, Sara Jane Moore was arrested in San Francisco on Monday, seconds after a shot was fired in the direction on the President.

She was born Feb. 14, 1930, as Sara Jane Kahn, daughter of Olaf and Ruth Kahn. Her mother's maiden name was Moore. Police have taken posession of her records from Charleton schools, including Stonewall Jackson high, where she was graduated in 1947.

The high school yearbook shows her in the drama club and in the school play.

"She was a quiet type child," said Robert G. Williams, her music teacher. "She was a wonderful student and a pretty fair instrumentalist. She played flute in the Stonewall band. I knew her parents real well. They were a nice family."

"Sara Jane was a well-adjusted child and had a good attitude toward life," said a longtime family friend, William R. Wiant. "I liked her best of the children.

One teacher, though, said Sara Jane Kahn "seemed a little odd."

"She was a little more standoffish," said Wade Burdette, a former junior high school teacher. "Some children are very vivacious and outgoing, but others aren't."

"I think she didn't need friends," said another former teacher, Helen Blackwood. "She was not the sort of girl who needed a gang around her."

After graduation, Sara Jane Kahn's trail disappears. Several people in Charleston said she joined the military.

Records in California show that a Sara Jane Kahn married Sidney L. Manning and had two children. Another child, Sidney Kahn of Cincinnati said Tuesday the woman arrested in San Francisco was his mother — but he later denied it.

A family friend in Charleston, who served as executrix for Olaf Kahn's estate, told the Charleston Gazette the three Manning children were adopted in the early 1960s by Olaf and Ruth Kahn. Another family friend, who declined to be identified, said there is a younger daughter, who is retarded and believed to live in a California institution.

U.S. to meet energy goal?

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An Ecuadorian oil official visiting American refineries says he believes the United States will eventually be able to meet its goal of energy independence.

Mario Paz, director of industry and refineries for Ecuador, interviewed during a visit to a Standard Oil of Ohio Co. (Sohio) refinery here, said he was very impressed with American technology.

Paz said he felt confident that the United States could achieve whatever goal it set.

He said his visit to the U.S. was strictly educational, and that he did not intend to negotiate any Ecuadorian oil concessions with American companies during his trip.

Most of Ecuador's oil is now sold in the United States.

Miami Trace riding high; opens SCOL play at Unioto

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Riding high on a wave of three non-league victories and perched in a position to nudge into the Associated Press Class 'AAA' prep poll, The Miami Trace Panthers begin the yearly task of capturing the South Central Ohio League crown when they travel to Unioto Friday.

Miami Trace has posted two convincing wins and has its tough defense to thank for another as the gridders head into Chillicothe, well aware that a big win—point-wise—could give them the necessary votes to move into the state's top ten. The Panthers were just 22 points shy of that mark in Tuesday's first weekly poll.

Miami Trace closed out league play last year with a 16-3 win over the Shermans from Ross County and a wider point margin is expected in this year's league opener against the same school. But, Unioto is fresh from a 12-9 win over county rival Adena, and upset is in coach Mike Shoemaker's game plans.

The Shermans are 2-1 on the year with their only loss coming at the hands of Portsmouth Notre Dame, and Panther mentor Fred Zechman will see some familiar formations when he tries to even the Tanks record for the year.

Shoemaker employs the unusual 4-4 defense that the Panthers so effectively use. Zechman and Shoemaker both played under Gene Slaughter at Capital University and they both share a love of stopping high powered offenses, although Zechman has had a little better success in that area this year.

Shoemaker will have a big, experienced backfield to throw against the Panthers, but the Unioto line is small and inexperienced.

The Tanks lost their whole interior line from tackle to tackle due to graduation, and now the backs outweigh the line by nearly 20 pounds.

Tri-captains Dan Anders, Roger Rutherford and Bob Matson join junior signal caller Scott Daily in the backfield presenting a capable offensive attack, if they make their own holes to run through.

Anders, who rushed for 104 yards against Adena Friday, leads the Shermans in scoring with three touchdowns while Rutherford, a 6-2", 190-pounder, is considered their best back. The Panthers had the distinct pleasure of missing Rutherford last season as an injury sidelined him early in his junior year. As a sophomore, he ran for close to 1,000 yards.

Matson, who at 6'0", 200-pounds is perhaps the strongest player on the squad, ran for 659 yards last season from his halfback position.

Daily seldom puts the ball in the air, but when he does two-year letterman Scott Brumfield is usually on the recieving end. The junior quarterback has completed seven of 14 attempts including a 64-yard strike to Matson for a touchdown.

The Tanks defense rarely stunts according to Miami Trace scouting reports, and its front four closely resemble the Panthers. Brumfield (6'3", 180) and Tony Norman (6'4", 205) are at the ends looking a lot like Bill Warnock and John Schlichter when suited up.

The smallest man on the Tanks team will start at a linebacker position. He is freshman Rick Lansing, who must pack a lot of punch in his 5'3", 120-pound frame to earn a starting berth.

The defense held Adena to just 60-yards rushing last week, but the Shermans should have more trouble with the Panthers, who have ran up over 1,000 yards total offense in three games against bigger and more experienced defenses.

Miami Trace Panther 'players of the week'

GREG COBB

BRUCE ERVIN

The Miami Trace co-captains received the Panther "Players of the Week" award for their performances in Friday's victory over Jackson.

Linebacker Greg Cobb won his third defensive aware of the season with another outstanding performance. He racked up 33 defensive points and 13 individual tackles.

The senior standout also was in on five assists and he capped the night's performance with an 87-yard interception return for a Panther touchdown.

The coaching staff also singled out the defensive performances of Rex Coe, Bruce Ervin, Dan LeBeau and Steve Wilson.

Offensively, Bruce Ervin received the "player of the Week" award. The senior halfback rushed for 120 yards, caught one pass for 19 yards and carried the ball 74 yards for a Miami Trace touchdown.

The Trace coaching staff praised the whole offensive backfield for their performance Friday singling out reserves Neil Spears and Dan Gifford. Guard Steve Waters was also mentioned for his blocking as the Panthers rushed for 365 yards.

Cobb and Ervin also earned the 'Big Lick' awards.

Ohio State's self-described "mean old coach" doesn't intend to rave about North Carolina, this week's opponent.

"We can't hold this team as highly as the first two," Hayes says. "You don't dare lie to your kids and tell them, 'Gee, we're against a real toughie this week.'"

Having defeated Michigan State 21-0 and Penn State 17-9 and with UCLA coming up next week, will Ohio State suffer a letdown against the 1-1 Tar Heels? "Not when they have a mean old coach," says the mean old coach.

Upset Special of the Week? Not a chance ... Ohio State 42-7.

Last week's forecasting score was 44 right, 20 wrong and two ties for a percentage of .688. For the season, it's 90-46-4— .662.

Oklahoma at Miami, Fla.: The first game of the Sooners' current 22-game winning streak was a 24-20 triumph over Miami thanks to a second-half rally. No. 23 won't be that close ... Oklahoma 48-7.

Purdue at Southern California; for the Boilers, it's out of the Notre Dame frying pan into the Southern Cal fire ... USC 31-13.

Texas Christian at Nebraska: Cornhuskers routed Indiana 45-0 last week and awarded the game ball to The AP's Fred Rothenberg, who picked the Hoosiers. TCU is game, but Huskers have a ball ... Nebraska 42-0.

Wisconsin at Missouri: Badgers battered Mizzou 59-20 last year and the Tigers, who could otherwise be looking ahead to Michigan, want revenge. Ergo ... Missouri 20-14.

Texas Tech at Texas: Tech won last year 26-3 so guess who wants revenge. Darrell Royal welcomes Steve Sloan to the Southwest Conference the hard way ... Texas 28-14.

Northwestern at Notre Dame: Wildcats are unbeaten, too, but not for long ... Notre Dame 28-0.

Illinois at Texas A&M: Firstever meeting gives the Illini something to remember ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Baylor at Michigan: Bears riddled by injuries and Wolverines snarling after 19-19 tie with Stanford. Michigan 17-7.

Alabama at Vanderbilt: Bear Bryant doesn't have Steve Sloan to kick around any more, so he takes it out on Fred Pancoast ... Alabama 30-12.

Penn State at Iowa: Hawkeyes lost to Illinois and Syracuse, now face Penn State, Southern Cal, Ohio State. Penn State 35-7.

Brigham Young at Arizona State: Cougars' hopes for a second straight WAC title get grounded in a hurry ... Arizona State 31-7.

Boston College at West Virginia: Winner retains a shot at the mythical Eastern crown ... Boston College 27-21.

Auburn at Tennessee: Do the Tigers always beat Tennessee, or does it just seem like it? Auburn 21-17.

Florida at Mississippi State: Gators were beaten by N.C. State, Bulldogs by NCAA ... Florida 27-17.

Maryland at Kentucky: Homecoming for Terp Coach Jerry Claiborne, who used to play at Kaintuck. Maryland 20-10.

NFL contract talks remain at impasse

CHICAGO (AP) — After 20 months of management-union negotiations, the same contract issues, highlighted by the controversial Rozelle Rule, continue to cloud the future of the National Football League.

Two days of collective bargaining discussions ended in a stalemate Tuesday with both sides agreeing that the same basic non-economic issue still plague a possible labor settlement.

With the breakoff in negotiations, the rank-and-file membership of some 950 players will vote beginning Thursday on management's latest contract offer, which representatives of the 26 NFL owners say will cost them about $30 million in new money over a five-year period.

Sentiment among the NFL union leaders, who met here in face-to-face confrontations with owners and into the wee hours among themselves, was that the contract proposal indicated no significant improvement on economic benefits nor a major change in the Rozelle compensation rule.

The union leaders, including the various team player representatives, also indicated that the proposal would be rejected in the vote by the membership.

After that, it's anybody's guess.

There was speculation that the New England Patriots, who triggered the meetings of Monday and Tuesday with their strike last week, would reject the contract proposal unanimously. But no one would venture a prediction if they would again walk out and refuse to play Sunday against the Miami Dolphins at Foxboro, Mass.

Under the memorandum of agreement last Thursday, which brought about management's proposal Monday, there would be three days of negotiations after the offer was made and then five days for the players to vote, the results to be made public by Oct. 2.

At the time, however, the Patriots said they would decide if management had made a meaningful offer. It was understood that the New England team, which had a contingent of some 15 here at their own expense, was frustrated to the point of exasperation by what they believed to be management's unbending stance in the negotiations.

Grambling leads college poll

By The Associated Press

"I'm as happy as a rat locked in a cheesehouse," said Coach Eddie Robinson after he was told that Grambling was ranked No. 1 by The Associated Press in its first weekly college division football poll.

"But at the same time, it makes you a little nervous," Robinson added in a telephone interview from the school's campus at Grambling, La.

"If you're No. 1, you have to play like you're No. 1. Other teams are always out to knock you off, but if you're No. 1 they're going to make a special effort."

Grambling, 3-0, received 11 first-place votes in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters, getting 344 of a possible 490 points.

Western Kentucky, 3-0, was No. 2 with 222 points, including eight first-place votes, while Boise State of Idaho, 2-0, was third with 221 points.

Rounding out the Top 15 were Texas A&I; Jackson State of Mississippi, Idaho State, Eastern Kentucky, Wittenberg of Ohio, Delaware, Henderson State of Arkansas, Northern Michigan, Youngstown State of Ohio, South Dakota State, Abilene Christian and North Dakota.

Grambling opened its 1975 campaign by trouncing Alcorn State 27-3, then routing Morgan State 40-6 and Hawaii 20-6.

"This has been a good team, but a surprising one," said Robinson.

"Grambling has a reputation of starting slow," he explained. "If we can get through the first three games, we can usually go undefeated from there."

"But this year, they just went out and got the points. I don't know if they're a new breed or what they're doing. They're of good size and quickness, but I can't really compare them with previous teams."

Grambling is idle this weekend, but anticipates a major battle in two weeks with Oregon State of the Pac-8 Conference.

"We'll have to play our best ball game," Robinson said. "They aren't going to let a Division II team come out there and defeat a Division I team."

Grambling was seventh-ranked last year with an 11-1 mark, but since then the two top-rated teams of 1974 — Central Michigan and Louisiana Tech — have been reclassified as major college football teams.

Lion linksters drop loop match

Hillsboro edged Weshington C.H. 183-189 in a South Central Ohio League golf match Monday at the Hillsboro Country Club.

John Moore and Greg Tillett were low for the Blue Lions with 46's while Scott Sefton shot a 48 and Gary Fisher carded a 49 to round out the scoring.

Landrum and Coletts won medalists honors for Hillsboro with 44's. The win puts Hillsboro at 3-2 in league play while Washington dropped to 0-6.

The Blue Lion Linksters meet Circleville for the second time this season on Wednesday at the Washington Country Club.

Trace Jr. High league to open

Four teams will be suited up and ready to take the field Thursday at Miami Trace High School, when the county junior high school football league kicks off the season at 5:45 p.m.

Admission price for the two grid contests is 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

A's still unable to clinch flag

Norman tosses 4 hitter to pace Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson says Fred Norman has been pitching well the past several weeks.

Norman allowed only four hits through eight innings Tuesday night as the Reds edged the Houston Astros, 5-3.

"Fred's pitching just like he did last season before he got hurt," Anderson said. "That makes seven games in a row he has pitched well for us."

Norman, 12-4, allowed early home runs by Cliff Johnson and Larry Milbourne and left in favor of Rawly Eastwick at the start of the ninth.

Tony Perez' double in the fourth inning drove in what prove to be the winning run for the Reds.

Perez' double scored Joe Morgan, who had led off the inning with a single.

The Reds pushed across three runs off Houston starter Mike Cosgrove in the third inning. Singles by Bill Plummer, Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo accounted for one run. After Norman sacrificed Pete Rose singled in both Griffey and Geronimo.

The Astros cut the lead to 3-1 on Cliff Johnson's 18th home run in the bottom of the second, but the Reds matched it in the third on Joe Morgan's infield hit and Perez' double.

The Astros pulled within one run, 4-3, in the third on Larry Milbourne's first home run of the season which followed a single by Roger Metzger.

The Reds added their final run in the eighth when Griffey doubled, stole third and scored on Geronimo's ground out.

Eastwick pitched the ninth for Cincinnati and retired the side in order to post his 20th save of the season. Cosgrove took the loss, his second against one victory.

Norman struck out four and did not walk a batter in his eight innings. It was Norman's fourth victory of the year over the Astros and gave the Reds a 12-5 lead in the season series.

Duffy Dyer got the royal treatment from the Pittsburgh Pirates — and in this case, it included beer, cold cuts, sliced tomatoes, a face cloth, a cigar and a stomach acid pill.

That's what he found on his stool Tuesday night after helping the Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 — along with a lane of towels leading to his locker.

"This is a 21-towel salute, I guess," Dyer kidded. "These guys are crazy, no question."

Dyer lashed three singles, including a run-scoring hit in the sixth when the Pirates scored three runs to give Bob Moose his winning cushion.

The Pirates, who clinched the National League East by beating the Phillies the night before, were obviously at ease with the pressure off. The postgame horseplay included loud cheers when Dyer walked the towel carpet to his locker and found the postgame meal.

In the other National League games, the San Diego Padres whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Houston Astros 5-3; the Montreal Expos blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 7-0 and the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 8-6. Rain washed out the Atlanta-San Francisco game.

The champagne in Oakland's dressing room has been on ice for three days — and so have the A's.

Oakland's magic number has been at one and holding since Saturday night when they stretched their American League West Division lead to eight games. Since then the Kansas City Royals have won three, the A's have lost three and the lead is down to five.

All of which leaves Oakland Manager Alvin Dark unmoved.

"It would be silly to be concerned when you're five ahead with five to go," said Dark after the A's dropped a 4-3 decision to Minnesota Tuesday night. "To tell you the truth I'm really not concerned about anything.

"But," Dark added, "We'd like to win it soon and get it over with."

Kansas City kept its hopes alive with a 4-0 triumph over Texas but Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog smiled when asked about overtaking the A's.

"They'll never lose that many games in a row," Herzog said. "We've won 89 games and I thought in the winter that 89 would win it."

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland edged Milwaukee 4-3, Chicago shaded California 5-4 and the BostonNew York and Detroit-Baltimore games were rained out. The Red Sox remain four games ahead of the Orioles in the AL East.

Minnesota right-hander Bert Blyleven, 15-9, checked the A's on nine hits and struck out seven. Rod Carew doubled home a run for the Twins off Stan Bahnsen, 10-13, in the first, Steve Braun hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and Dan Ford doubled home two runs in the eighth.

Bert Campaneris had a runscoring single in the eighth for Oakland and Joe Rudi made it close with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth.

A's ace Vida Blue goes for th clincher tonight against Chicago's Jesse Jefferson, 5-10.

Kansas City used four pitchers to two-hit the Rangers. Doug Bird started but left in the second inning after injuring his arm. Rookie Bob McClure came in and continued the nohitter until Roy Smalley singled with one out in the seventh. Steve Mingori and Marty Pattin finished up.

Frank White hit a home run for the Royals.

Relations between U.S., Puerto Rico to be eyed

By JOSE F. SERRA
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — In the coming months, the Congress in Washington will try to redefine the relationship between Puerto Rico and the United States. Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon predicts the road to agreement will be full of obstacles.

For one thing, Congress will be working with a proposed compact that would shift power over Puerto Rican affairs from Capitol Hill to the White House. Well informed sources here don't expect Congress to part easily with its prerogatives in U.S.-Puerto Rican affairs.

For another, the proposed new compact would enlarge the autonomy of the Puerto Rican Commonwealth government, giving the island government primary authority for labor relations, minimum wages and environmental affairs. This, too, could spark heavy congressional opposition.

For a third, if Congress does approve the compact it must then be submitted to the people of Puerto Rico in a referendum and three parties are already campaigning against it: the New Progressive party, which wants statehood, and the Socialist party and Independence party, which want independence.

The relationship between Puerto Rico and the United States is unique to the American system. Puerto Rico voted in 1952 to become the first commonwealth of the United States and over the past 23 years, Congress has traditionally had final authority on all matters concerning the island.

Its three million residents are U.S. citizens but do not pay federal income taxes. The United States is responsible for the island's defense, foreign affairs and foreign trade. In fiscal 1974, federal aid to Puerto Rico for housing, health, education and other programs totaled $1.27 billion.

The compact proposals, which are the result of two years of work by a U.S.-Puerto Rican commission headed by former Gov. Luis Munoz Marin and former U.S. Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., would give the U.S. President and Puerto Rico's governor new powers.

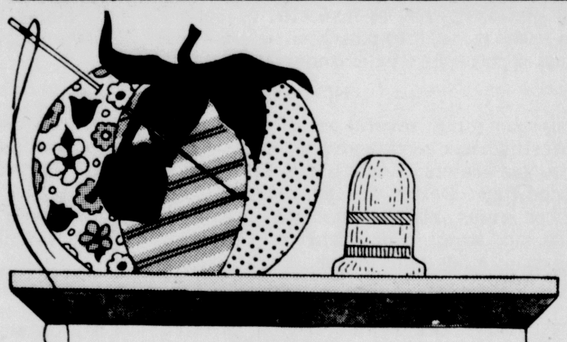

A six-man joint commission would be created to handle a broad range of U.S.-Puerto Rican matters and the two chief executives would be given new authority to act in key areas such as defense, immigration and commercial dealings.

Puerto Rico's governor would be authorized to enter into direct contact with the White House on such matters as unemployment, land transfers, special tariffs and problems relating to aliens. Puerto Rico would also gain the right of bilateral say regarding any basic changes in future relations with the United States.

In addition, the compact would add a second resident non-voting commissioner from Puerto Rico to the Senate.

Dry beans spark research

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press Writer

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Complaints about musty or moldy flavors in processed dry beans — in products such as chili and pork and beans — have caused the West Coast industry to begin an emergency research program, officials say.

Professors at Washington State University and the University of Idaho are seven months into studies they hope will reveal why some processed beans don't taste or smell good, despite normal cooking and handling.

Some persons estimate that up to 10 per cent of the 1972 and 1973 crops were afflicted by the off-flavor problem. Up to 5 per cent of the 1974 crop has been rejected in some places, one of the professors said, though it is still too early to tell whether the mysterious problem lingers.

"If this problem continued into the 1974 crop, the threat to all segments of the dry bean industry was indeed serious," said John Sacklin, food science director of Nalley's Fine Foods and an organizer of the research effort. "The economic implications to our own Pacific Northwest agribusiness is extensive."

Some estimates of the loss have ranged as high as $10 million in Washington and Idaho last year. Michigan and California are the two top bean states, but in Idaho, the 1974 crop was 2.5 million hundredweight, mainly of pinto beans. They are valued at $63.8 million.

Washington's 1974 production was 494,000 hundredweight, worth an estimated $12.66 million.

Heading the research are Dr. Barry Swanson at WSU and Dr. John Montoure at UI Moscow. Swanson is examining dried beans for mold content and Montoure is cooking up batches of dry beans in a commercial process to see if handling methods result in musty flavors.

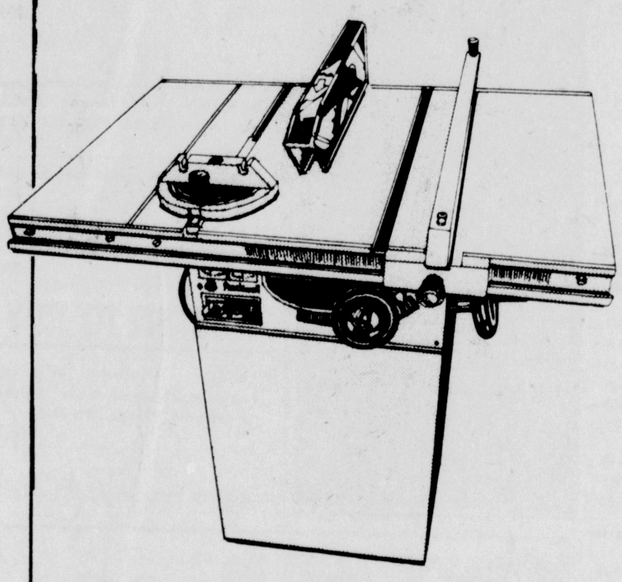

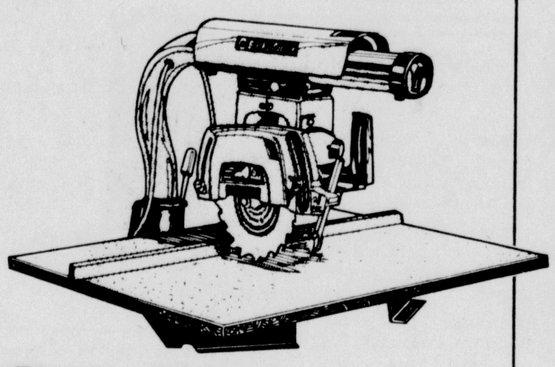

They say that harvest-time moisture may be the cause, though nothing is known yet for sure.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Find the Cause of Bursitis

About three times a year I get an attack of bursitis in my right shoulder. It comes on suddenly. Is there some way that this can be prevented?

Mr. T.H.T., Calif.

Dear Mr. T.:

Any member of the "bursitis club" knows how miserable it can be to have an attack of acute bursitis.

The pain is excrutiating. This, coupled with the inability to move the arm, can mean almost total incapacitation.

A few things are known about the cause of bursitis in the shoulder. Lifting a heavy weight, an injury, even as off-balance swing of a tennis racket or a golf club can set bursitis in motion. Exposure to draft may be responsible, too.

A bursa is a flat sac that normally contains a lubricating fluid. There are about 150 bursae in various parts of the body. They act as the lubricating, ball-bearing system.

Bones, tendons, joints and muscles that constantly move against each other are protected against the irritation of friction by these well-placed bursae.

When the bursa becomes inflamed, the need for rest is automatically imposed on the body. The sharp pain is the body's protective device to make sure that the shoulder joint will remain immobile.

The ideal way to prevent recurring attacks of bursitis is to try to track down its cause and then avoid it.

More and more attention is being paid to the possibility that gout may be one of the unsuspected reasons for bursitis, especially if there is no evident source of injury to the shoulder joint. This should be ruled out since you have recurring attacks.

When the first twinges of pain occur, don't try to "work out" the pain with exercise, massage or manipulation. This tends only to precipitate an agonizing attack. Rest of the shoulder joint is urgent, preferably with a sling.

Today, the use of cortisone, ACTH, X-ray treatments, ultrasonic vibrations, application of cold packs and injections of anesthetics into the joints can relieve the pain and speed recovery.

It is surprising how often people overlook the fact that the cause may be using a machine like a drill press, or twisting their arms in unusual ways while at work. Try to review all the forces that exert pressure on your shoulder, either at work, in sports, or in the home.

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Bridge is not a lazy man's game — if you want to get the best results possible. You just can't sit there, make only mechanical bids and plays, and expect to do well. You have to spend lots of time trying to figure out what everybody has, and follow these thoughts through to a logical conclusion.

Here is a type of problem occasionally encountered. Assume you're in four spades and West leads a diamond. East takes the king with the ace and returns the five, which West wins with the ten. West continues with the queen, East discarding a club as you ruff.

Let's say you enter dummy with a club and play a spade to the queen, losing the finesse to the king. East later scores another trump trick and down you go.

The sad fact is that all this could happen in quite a few bridge games and nobody would pay any attention to it. The players would think South was unlucky to lose the trump finesse and attribute the outcome to bad luck.

It is actually not difficult to figure out that East cannot have the king of spades and that a finesse must be a losing proposition. Once East shows up with the ace of diamonds at trick one, it must be assumed that he cannot have the king of spades also. He would surely not pass one diamond with an ace and a king.

Declarer should therefore play the ace and a low spade, instead of finessing, in the hope of finding West with the doubleton king. It is the only real chance he has of making the contract, and the only straw he can sensibly grab at.

THE BETTER HALF — By Barnes

Claim large phone firms being unfair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for the Ohio Communications Association charged today that telephone utility systems are trying to force private telephone equipment companies out of business through "unfair and illegal competition."

James Cotesworth, president of the association, made the accusation during testimony before the Legislative Joint Select Committee on Energy.

The association says it represents the interests of sellers and consumers of privately owned telephone terminal equipment including telephones, switchboards and answering devices.

Cotesworth said there were several instances of illegal discriminatory pricing by telephone utilities. He said rate increases for residential and business lines where there is no competition have been dramatic since 1970.

At the same time, he said, rates have not increased proportionally for-terminal equipment where the utilities face competition. The home owner, he charged, is being forced to carry an unfair burden for the lower priced terminal equipment provided business firms.

Cotesworth said that documents on file with the Federal Communications Commission show that American Telephone and Telegraph plans to lose $127 million on one small business system. He said the losses would be recovered by raising residential and business line rates.

Cotesworth charged that the Ohio Public Utilities Commission is either unwilling or unable to protect the public against alleged discriminatory practices by the telephone companies. He proposed legislative reform.

By The Associated Press

Ample rain fell in eastern and southern Ohio Tuesday and last night, as the state felt about the only effects it's going to get from former hurricane Eloise.

In northwestern Ohio, only a trace was reported in Findlay, and none in Toledo. The heaviest amounts in Ohio were in the southeast part. Just across the Ohio River, Parkersburg, West Virginia, had 2.25 inches of rain in the past 24 hours.

Early this morning, radar reports showed that the intensity and the area covered by the rain was decreasing. The storm was centered over the mountains of western Virginia this morning and was weakening.

Brisk northerly winds today in Ohio were expected to keep temperatures about the same as Tuesday, when the highs generally hovered around 60. Lows overnight were 50 to 55.

Little change is seen for Thursday, with expected highs of 60 to 65, along with a chance of rain.

A chance of showers Friday and Saturday, fair Sunday. Highs in the 60s. Lows in the 40s.

Set truce in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese and Palestinian leaders have agreed to halt fighting and withdraw their warring gunmen from all suburbs of this embattled capital, Premier Rashid Karami announced today.

"As of 1700 (10 a.m. EDT) Wednesday all armed elements are to be withdrawn from all Beirut suburbs and all roadblocks, gun positions and observation posts are to be removed," Karami said in a nationwide broadcast.

The new truce was agreed on at a meeting of Karami, Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam and Palestinian guerrilla leaders Yasir Arafat, Zuhair Mohsen and Abul Hassan.

"All acts of violence are to come to end at once in all areas and all parties are to release the abducted persons," Karami said.

The announcement followed another night of machine-gun battles, bomb blasts and fires despite the cease-fire agreement last weekend.

Shoplifting incident checked

A 16-year-old Washington C.H. boy has been arrested and charged by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department with theft through shoplifting.

Rick L. Malott, 520 N. North St., was stopped by employes at Seaway, 1270 Clinton Ave., after he was observed to remove an auto distributor cap valued at $2.80 from its package, put it inside his pants and attempted to leave the store without paying for it. The alleged incident occurred at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. Malott has been released to his parents.

Sheriff's deputies also reported a burglary, while the Washington C.H. Police Department reported a personal injury, an incident of vandalism, a breaking and entering and a case of malicious destruction.

Madison Mills Elementary School was entered between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday by someone who stole a total of $16.23 from school desks. Deputies are investigating the theft.

A front window at Lord's, 221 E. Court St., valued at $113.20, was broken between 4:30 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, Washington C.H. police reported.

The Charles Creech home at 611 E. Market St., was entered between 7:30 a.m. and 4:10 p.m. Tuesday and $25 worth of food was taken from the refrigerator and kitchen cabinets and carried off in two green five-gallon plastic buckets which had been standing on the porch. Police are investigating.

A car belonging to Golden Davis, 629 S. North St., was scratched on the right front fender with a knife while parked at Buckeye Mart, Columbus Avenue, at 4 p.m. Sept. 17, police reported today. They also stated the molding around the passenger window had been cut and estimated total damage at $74.45.

Paul Underwood, 63, of 821 Vine St., fell at 11 a.m. Tuesday in his home and injured his back. Police dispatched an ambulance and Underwood was admitted to Fayette Memorial Hospital, where he is presently listed in satisfactory condition.

A 20-inch bicycle has been removed by city police near the railroad tracks at the end of N. Fayette Street.

Three youths nabbed for tavern burglary

Three Washington C.H. youths have been arrested and charged by the Washington C.H. Police Department with breaking and entering after an investigation headed by Washington C.H. Police Specialist Larry Hott into the burglary of the Rocking Chair Bar, 428 Wilson St., which occurred between 3 a.m. and 4:18 a.m. Sunday.

The trio, consisting of two juveniles (ages 16 and 17) and Dean E. Groves, 18, of 1143 Rawlings St., allegedly entered the building by cutting a window screen and once inside pried the cigarette, bowling and air hockey machines plus a juke box, taking more than the original $30 police suspected stolen.

The 16-year-old has been released to a parent, the 17-year-old is presently incarcerated in the Fayette County juvenile detention facility and Groves is being held in the city jail in lieu of $2,500 bond. Police stated additional charges are pending against the three.

Deputies charge pair of drivers

A Bloomingburg woman and an Alcoa, Tenn. man were cited by Fayette County Sheriff's deputies in two non-related traffic accidents Tuesday. Deputies also investigated a third accident which they reported as minor.

A car driven by Betsy E. Hagler, 26, of Bloomingburg, traveled left of center on Ohio 38, two-tenths of a mile south of Yatesville-Wissler Road at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and struck a fence belonging to Bob Hagler, Rt. 2, and an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. junction box. Her car was slightly damaged and she was cited by sheriff's deputies for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway.

A semi-truck driven by Vincent R. Cardin, 38, Alcoa, Tenn., traveled onto the median strip of I-71 near the Ohio 38 exit and jack-knifed at 11:15 p.m. Tuesday. The truck was minorly damaged and Cardin was cited by deputies for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway.

Cars driven by Charlyn J.Estep, 22, of 331 Grove Ave., and Kenneth E. Payton, 22, of 522 Peddicord Ave., collided in the Roller Haven parking lot, CCC-Highway-W, at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Damage to both autos was estimated as slight and neither driver was injured nor charged.

Blast rips Newark motel

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — An early-morning explosion, which police said apparently was caused by a bomb, caused extensive damage to a new Sheraton Motor Inn under construction in downtown Newark.

The blast, which occurred at 12:10 a.m., shattered windows in a nearby post office, homes and businesses and was heard as far as four miles away.

No injuries were reported.

The owners of the 120-room motel said they had received phone calls threatening the Sheraton project and others they have under construction.

Local trade unions have picketed the project since construction began early this year, protesting the nonuse of local trade union members on the project.

No dollar estimate of damage was immediately available.

Trotwood-Madison schools reopened

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Trotwood-Madison School District was to open its six schools on a normal schedule today after being closed two days and operating on a piecemeal schedule for two more as the result of racial flareups. The schools were closed last Wednesday as a series of racial incidents which began on school buses spread to school property. Freshman and seniors attended classes Monday, and sophomores and juniors Tuesday.

Teachers without classes and volunteer parents have been serving as monitors on the buses and in the classrooms. The Trotwood-Madison School District has five elementary schools.

Teachers in the district have threatened to go on strike over salary demands but postponed any walkout until the racial unrest stabilizes, spokesmen said.

Firemen respond to faulty alarm

Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to Court House Manor Nursing Home for the second time in two days because of a faulty fire detection alarm.

The alarm sounded at 12:01 p.m. Tuesday and originally at 2:48 p.m. Monday. There were no fires at the 250 Glenn Ave. location.
